

Russian Establishment Has Bad Case Of Nerves

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

"You think you've got troubles?"

The Soviet Establishment might justifiably be asking that of the American and Chinese Establishments.

The Americans and Chinese had plenty of troubles in the decade just ended. The U.S. Establishment was badgered by impatient and disillusioned youngsters. China's bureaucracy was dismantled by hordes of young people who were told they were carrying out a cultural revolution.

Document Issued

But it seems that the military-political-bureaucratic complex in Moscow is nursing a bad case of nerves. A 13,000-word document issued by the Communist party's Central Committee and labeled "Theses" demonstrates this.

The Theses were promulgated to coincide with this year's celebration of the 10th anniversary of Lenin's birth. The document obviously is supposed to be a guiding manual for Communists everywhere, inside and outside the Soviet Union.

But the document is something else again.

Telling Self-Portrait

It produces a telling self-portrait of inner circle leaders who are haunted by ghosts and goblins, fetishes and phobias, and nagged and needed by enemies. After 52 years of authoritarian power, the leadership shows itself to be jealously guarding its privileges, captive of its own clichés and terrified of the very thought of change.

If the document is to be credited, enemies lurk everywhere waiting for an opportunity to bore from within and strike from without to disintegrate the Soviet system and the world revolutionary movement, and only strict adherence to Soviet orthodoxy on all fronts can rescue the situation.

Subversive Elements

The enemies are such things as "modern bourgeois ideology" slyly imported from the West into the Communist family and propagated by subversive elements.

There are writers, intellectuals, students and young people in the Soviet Union who have been tainted by Western ideas and have become a major nuisance. They, and others like them in Communist-ruled Eastern Europe are targets for "subversive" forces from the West.

There is nationalism in non-Russian Soviet republics. Nationalism in the bloc nations has become the tool of plotting imperialists. Nationalism in Red China is supporting the "opportunistic revisionist views on which imperialism plays."

Some Admire Mao

There are opportunists of the right and left, revisionists of the right and left, "ultrarevolutionaries" who admire Mao Tse-tung. There are the Social Democrats in Europe. Besides "political liberalism," West German "revanchism," American "imperialism" and a clutch of other assorted isms all are waiting to pounce on the Soviet system and do it in.

There is the sort of deviationism which produced the uproar in Czechoslovakia and brought

Agnew On Mission

Chinese Nationalists Get U.S. Reassurance

Easing Tension With Red China American Goal

TAIPEI (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Formosa today to assure Nationalist China the U.S. government intends to stand by its treaty commitments. But en route from Vietnam he said the Nixon administration favors initiatives to lessen tensions with Communist China and permit a reduction in military spending.

Seeks To Ease Tension

Agnew told newsmen traveling with him that the recent relaxation of American restrictions on trade with mainland China reflect a hope they will lead to steps by the Chinese Communists to lessen the tensions that exist in Asia.

The United States, he continued, should not sit still in a stance of armed preparedness and make no initiatives to develop an atmosphere that will allow it to reduce military spending and use some of that money in programs needed at home.

Chinese Backing Stays

But the vice president said U.S. efforts to ease tensions with the Communist Chinese do not in any way affect the U.S. commitment to the Nationalist Chinese.

"China is a country of 800 million people," he continued. "They can't be ignored. But attempting to begin a meaningful dialogue with them does not lessen our desire and our conviction that the Republic of China government must be protected in accordance with our stated treaty obligations."

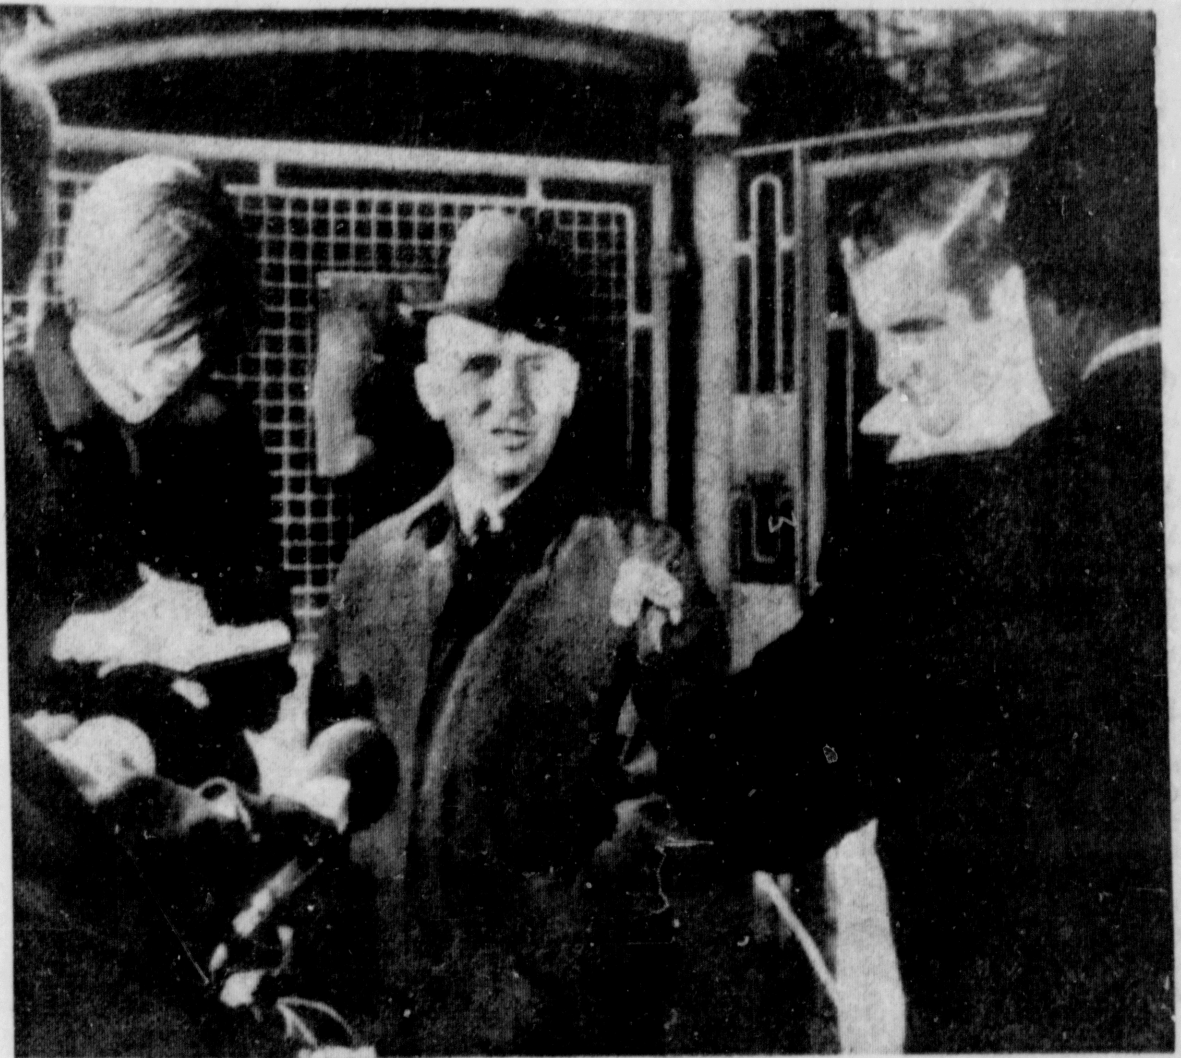

Agnew said his purpose on the tour is to emphasize the "positive" side of the Nixon Doctrine for Asia—commitment to U.S. treaty obligations and U.S. defense of Asia against massive aggression.

Different Mechanics

He said he would assure President Chiang Kai-shek there is no diminution in the U.S. posture in Formosa, there is just a matter of different mechanics to achieve it.

"We intend to remain an active and concerned member of the Pacific community," Agnew said in his arrival speech to Vice President C.K. Yen.

As his motorcade moved through downtown Taipei, Agnew stopped his car twice and moved through the cheering crowd, smiling and shaking hands. Forty-foot paper dragons appeared from the crowd at both places and gyrated as the vice president smiled and applauded.

Bid For World Peace Pushed By Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — If Pope Paul's New Year plea for peace is any indication, he is likely in 1970 to continue vigorous personal gestures to help end the world's wars.

One gesture may be a symbolic "peace trip" to Hiroshima, Japan, site of the atomic bomb explosion. Or the pontiff may make new personal efforts to get Nigerians and Biafrans to the negotiating table.

In 1969, the Pope renewed his long-standing offers to help in achieving what he called "reconciliation" in Vietnam and the Middle East. His Vatican relief agency, Caritas, shipped and flew millions of dollars in medicine and supplies to the sick, the wounded and the homeless in those areas.

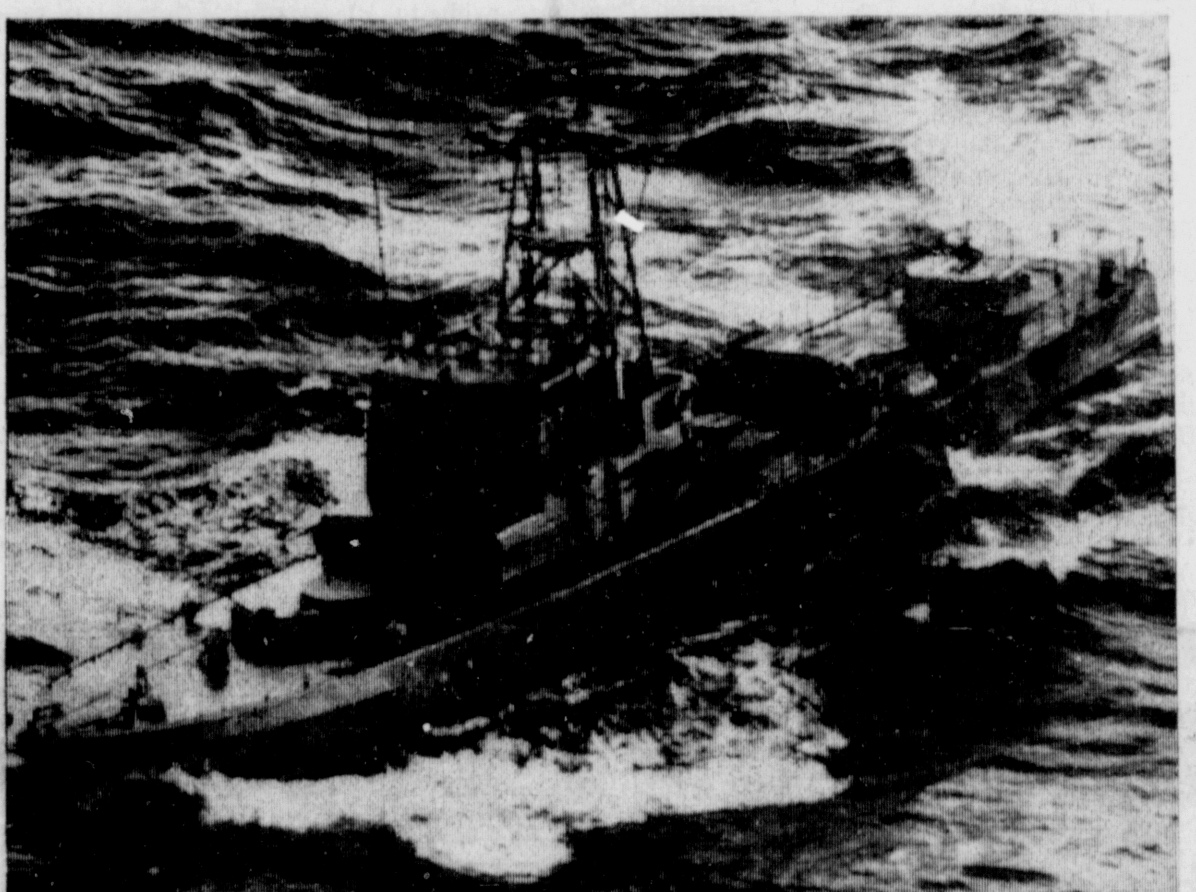

Pope Paul traveled for the first time to Africa, and in Uganda he met separately with Biafran and Nigerian delegates in an effort to get negotiations started again. He obtained only vague promises from both sides.

During the holiday season, Pope Paul expressed in several pessimistic speeches his frustration at not achieving results. World leaders—especially those of the major powers—bore the brunt of the blame.

These actions have led some observers to conclude that the Pope may be reverting to the role of a critical observer, rather than that of a participant in world affairs. Many, however, think he will not give up the personal diplomacy that has marked his 6½-year reign.

Peace "concerns leaders, especially those invested with international responsibility," he said again on New Year's Day, during a "Day of Peace" Mass celebrated in a Rome church.

He ended his New Year's observations on peace with a prayer to God which took the form of a confession of humanity.

Baraga County Pair Victims Of Home Blaze

By The Associated Press

New Year's Day fires claimed three lives in widely separated Michigan communities.

Theodore Bloom, 49, and his wife Melinda, 61, died early Thursday when fire leveled their small wood frame house on White Siding Road near Nisula, in the Upper Peninsula west of Baraga.

State Police said a passerby noticed flames and notified authorities. The Laird Township Volunteer Fire Department answered the call, but the home was already virtually destroyed. Cause of the blaze was not known.

In Battle Creek Township the 66-year-old wife of a physician died as a result of the fire which gutted their home Thursday. Harriet E. Hibbs, 66, was the wife of the medical director of the American Legion Rehabilitation Center at Battle Creek. Dr. Donald Hibbs was overcome by smoke when the blaze swept through the home, police said.

Weather

ESCANABA AND VICINITY—Mostly cloudy with occasional snow today, tonight and Saturday. High today near 26, low tonight about 8. Snow likely Saturday with temperatures in the lower 20s. Sunday's outlook: chance of light snow or flurries. Sun sets today at 5:14 p. m., and rises Saturday at 8:30 a. m.

Western and Central Upper Peninsula—Mostly cloudy with occasional snow tonight and Saturday, highs between 22 and 26 and lows tonight will range from 3 to 8 degrees above zero. Saturday, snow likely with highs of 18 and 23. Sunday's outlook: Chance of light snow flurries. Winds variable under 10 mph today and Saturday. Probabilities of precipitation: 50% today, 50% tonight and 40% Thursday.

Mysterious Flu Stumps Experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government disease detectives are trying to solve a year-old influenza mystery: why did six states essentially escape last winter's raging epidemic of Hong Kong flu?

If they could crack it, the solution could have worldwide significance.

They said so Thursday in reiterating their confidence the United States will be spared any nationwide epidemic of flu this winter, despite the mounting influenza crisis affecting wide areas of Europe.

Indeed, the medical experts said, it's unlikely there will be more than sporadic or limited outbreaks in America, like some that have occurred already in Alaska and Puerto Rico.

Recalling last winter's epidemic of Hong Kong flu that sickened many thousands of Americans and killed at least 3,800, the experts said they are puzzled by questions like these:

Why were six states—Mississippi, Oklahoma, Texas, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Hawaii—virtually by-passed by the wave of Hong Kong virus, technically known as A-2-1968?

And will those same states have the same experience again—although now theoretically susceptible to sporadic outbreaks from this year's reappearance of the same virus?

Most residents of the other 44 states are now temporarily immune to the wily microbe, simply because they were infected last winter.

In contrast, last winter's epidemic struck relatively few people in Europe, thereby leaving thousands vulnerable to attack this winter.

No American casualties were reported.

U.S. forces maintained both ground and aerial reconnaissance patrols during the 24-hour allied cease-fire, contending that the enemy would take advantage of the cease-fire to move troops and supplies into place for a new offensive.

"We spotted them moving north parallel to the border," an American officer said. "It wasn't clear whether they engaged us first or we engaged them first. There was no report of any fire from or going into Cambodia."

U.S. B52 bombers resumed raids in South Vietnam following the cease-fire. Some 30 of the big bombers rained down nearly 1,000 tons of bombs near the Cambodian border.

FBI Report On Black Extremists Formidable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black extremists made more than 100 attacks in the past six months on the nation's police officers, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported today.

In a year-end report on FBI activities during 1969, Hoover said at least seven policemen died and more than 120 others were injured in combat with militant Negro groups.

He released no figures on the number of Negroes killed in the skirmishes.

Fan Flames Of Riot

But he said "extremist all-Negro, hate-type organizations, such as the Black Panther Party, continued to fan the flames of riot and revolution" during the year.

"Many of these groups, whose leaders preach violence and hatred of the white race, have been involved in shootouts with local police," he said.

"Many attacks on police by black extremists," he added, "are unprovoked and nothing more than planned ambushes."

Denies Panther Roubout

Although Hoover did not mention it, Black Panther leaders have accused the Justice Department, and the FBI, of taking part in an organized national campaign to destroy the group. The department officially denied it.

While condemning black ex-

J. Edgar Hoover

with many groups now advocating "violent revolution."

Government Target

Referring to the students for a Democratic Society, Hoover said all of its factions support "the concept of a Marxist-Leninist revolutionary group dedicated to the violent overthrow of the United States government."

He singled out the Weatherman faction of SDS as a particularly violent element that seeks "to establish itself in the vanguard of the revolutionary movement by engaging in terroristic tactics."

And he said the SDS was largely responsible for student unrest during the past year on the nation's college campuses.

4,000 Arrests Noted

Those disturbances, he said, resulted in more than 4,000 arrests, more than $3 million in damage, one death and more than 125 injuries at more than 225 college campuses during the 1968-69 school year.

"Continuing the trend," he said, "the current school year has seen approximately 215 demonstrations thus far, including 24 sit-ins or building seizures."

Hoover listed 16 incidents of arson on campuses, two bombings, more than 350 arrests and 33 police officers injured in the

Dizzy Dean Nabbed In Gambling Raid

DETROIT (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents arrested nine persons in Michigan on New Year's Day in what a federal official described as a "national scheme involving famous figures in baseball and football and hundreds of trainers and jockeys at racetracks throughout the United States."

James E. Ritchie, special assistant U.S. attorney, said he and IRS agents, armed with a search warrant signed by Detroit Federal Judge Thaddeus M. Machrowicz, searched the Las Vegas hotel room of former baseball star Dizzy Dean.

Dean was not held but Ritchie said another man, Fritz Lindstrom, was arrested in Las Vegas in connection with the betting ring.

"Statements made by some of those arrested and seized records indicate a national scheme involving famous figures in baseball and football and hundreds of trainers and jockeys at racetracks throughout the United States," Ritchie said.

A special 23-member grand jury, the indicting arm of a Detroit federal task force on crime, will soon hear testimony from sports figures and bookmakers to "determine the effect of their association," Ritchie said.

U.S. Atty. James H. Brickley said the 50 IRS agents who participated in the raids seized $620,000 in cash and checks, three autos and a vast quantity of betting records.

Those arrested were charged with violating federal anti-gambling statutes. The warrants were signed by Judge Machrowicz.

The nine Michigan men were arraigned Thursday before an acting U.S. commissioner in the Federal Building at Detroit. They were released on $1,000 personal bonds.

Among those arrested, Brickley said, were Donald J. Dawson, 48, of Birmingham, Mich., who was arrested at a Birmingham motel where IRS agents said they confiscated $450,000 in cashier's checks and business checks, along with a car.

IRS agents said they seized $171,000 in currency and gambling records from Isaac (Ike) Johns, 57, when they arrested him at his home in Lansing.

Howard Dixon, 61, of Detroit and Leonard Torrice, of East Detroit were arrested at Dixon's home, Brickley said.

Jack A. Lucido, 35, of Grosse Pointe Woods, was arrested by IRS agents in suburban Center Line, and the IRS agents said they seized his car.

Others arrested were Nick C.

Both Sides Eye Credit For Law, Order Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politicians, Democratic and Republican, are closing in on the vote-rich issue of crime and law and order legislation.

The skirmishing is likely to step up shortly after Congress reconvenes on Jan. 19, with legislation aimed at organized crime due for early action.

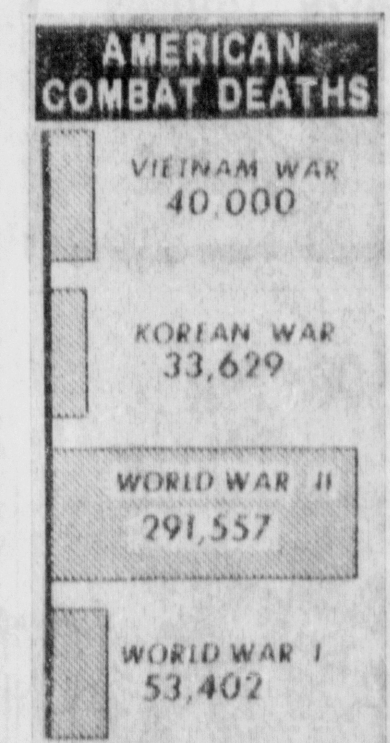

There already is the beginning of a political custody dispute over the bill involved, with the Democratic National Committee crediting it to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., while Republicans claim an administration trademark.

McClellan himself calls the bill a thoroughly bipartisan effort. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield described it as a composite measure, and said it would be one of the first bills taken up in the new session.

"The President's initiative for new and needed crime control programs must be made as soon as possible," said Sen. Hugh Scott, the Republican leader, in a session-end statement distributed by the GOP national committee.

At the same time, strategists at the Democratic National Committee have advised party officials and spokesmen to take the political offensive on crime, and to hold Nixon responsible "for his ineffectual handling" of that and other problems.

The administration has complained repeatedly that inaction in the Democratic-controlled Congress has hampered its anti-crime plan.

Outlook For The Decade:

Escanaba Approaches Problems Confidently

BY GEORGE HARVEY
City Manager
City of Escanaba
(Fourth of a Series)

Now that we are about to enter a new decade, the 70s, it may be the time to project and to ponder some of the needs and problems that may arise in our local community.

As it appears now, the funding of local governmental units will change drastically. As in everything else, the cost of government continues to rise. There are many reasons for this such as increased cost of labor and materials, and the necessary expansion of facilities such as water and electrical generating capacity to cover the increased demand for these services.

Paying for these increases has and will continue to be a problem. The present property tax system is regressive and self-defeating. It is apparent that this form of taxation will gradually be replaced by a more equitable system and very possibly supplemented by the sharing of revenues from the State and Federal government. It may be necessary in the next decade to institute a City income tax.

Major Problem

A major problem facing the City early in the next decade will be the expansion of water-sewerage facilities. This expansion is necessary to conform to the standards set by Federal Water Pollution Control Act and to care for the future needs of the people of the City. The system, as is, is not adequate to handle these future needs and is largely obsolete.

1970 will see the completion in Escanaba of the Senior Citizens' Apartment Building, but I believe that we will face an acute shortage of adequate low cost housing for our citizens. This problem will require a large effort to be undertaken by private industry or by an infusion of federal funds.

Public safety in Escanaba will have to be expanded in the next 10 years, and may require the consolidation and integration of Police and Fire services.

There has been, and will continue to be, a change in employment relations. The effect of these changes could have a very large impact on local municipal operations.

Waterfront Work?

Escanaba has spent a large sum of money in its waterfront development and more will be required if our waterfront is to remain an important part of the beauty of the City.

Presently, the City is involved in curbing pollution at its electric generating and its asphalt plants. The technology is now available to help in overcoming pollution and the City will be in the forefront of the battle against pollution.

A major concern of the City government will be on improving what many call the "Quality of Life." This will require continued support of the citizens of our community as well as a concerned City administration.

Some of these problems may be solved with the consolidation of services with other local governmental units to affect a more efficient way of taking care of regional problems.

We face the 70s confident that we can overcome any problems that may arise.

'Mystery Ship' Program Will Be Open To Public

Because of the interest expressed in the program of the Delta County Historical Society for its annual meeting to be held Monday, Jan. 19, the Society is opening the meeting to the public, it is announced by Mrs. Clint Dunathan, Historical Society president.

"The Mystery Ship From 19 Fathoms," a report on the recovery of a 19th century schooner from the bottom of Green Bay, will be presented by speakers, plus movies and slides.

The dinner is scheduled at the Terrace Supper Club for 6:45 p.m. Jan. 19, and reservations must be made by Friday, Jan. 16.

Reservations are to be made by calling Miss Eva Flemstrom, 786-2312 or Mrs. Kenneth Buckland, 786-2751.

The speakers will be Frank Hoffman of Menominee, discoverer of the "mystery ship" who worked tirelessly for its recovery, and Thomas Quinn, director of the Neville Public Museum, Green Bay. The old schooner was raised from about 119 feet of water and brought to Marinette by the Marinette Marine Corp. and Gallagher Marine Co., Escanaba.

Identity of the "mystery ship" has not been established, although her dimensions — 105 feet long and 25 feet wide — match those of the schooner Alvin Clark, which sank in a storm on Green Bay in 1864.

Hoffman is planning a marine museum at Menominee with the ship the center of attraction.

NMU Program Sends Scientists To High Schools

MARQUETTE—Northern Michigan University has started a visiting scientist program for Upper Peninsula high school science and mathematics classes.

This is the first year that Northern has participated in this type of program in the science field, but plans call for it to become an annual affair.

Among the departments from the School of Arts and Sciences participating in the program are biology, chemistry, physics, mathematics, geography and earth sciences. Professors from these departments have already accepted over 100 invitations to lecture at 28 different high schools throughout the U. P.

Dr. Robert Wagner, head of Northern's department of physics, has done most of the work in organizing and implementing the visiting scientist program.

Through the lectures and demonstrations, which will make up the program's presentation, it is expected that high school students will become aware of significant research projects and studies presently associated with these departments at Northern.

In addition to the visiting scientist program, the university will continue to present a one-day on-campus visit for high school students, tentatively set for Friday, March 20.

U.S. Steel Boats To Keep Sailing Until Jan. 15

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Sparked by the delayed opening of this year's lakes shipping season while maritime labor contracts were being negotiated, U. S. Steel's Great Lakes Fleet will continue operating six of its ore carriers into early 1970, said Capt. Joseph J. Parrilla, general manager of the fleet.

"Ice conditions permitting," he said, "these vessels will sail until January 15. Of primary concern will be the delays in the Sault Ste. Marie area and along the St. Mary's River where navigation is restricted to daytime-hours due to lock schedules, as well as the delays caused by the absence of navigation aids which ordinarily facilitate nighttime operation in the restricted channels," he pointed out.

"An effect of these delays," Parrilla said, "is a possible accelerated build-up of ice cover due to the lack of regularity of passage by vessels through these restricted and protected waters.

Named to continue operating were the following vessels—the Arthur M. Anderson, Cason J. Callaway, Philip R. Clarke, William J. Ferbert, Enders M. Voorhees and Irving S. Olds.

Bus Line Bid Being Studied By Marquette

MARQUETTE—Another proposal to grant a franchise for establishment of a bus line here is being considered by the city commission.

It scheduled a public hearing Jan. 26 on a proposal to grant a franchise to Mrs. Peggy Braamse, Marquette, who said she planned to operate the Marquette Bus Service beginning in late February.

Last May 12, the commission granted the Red Arrow Bus Line a franchise to operate buses, but the service never materialized. A year before that a bus line was started, but went bankrupt within a few months.

Tech Grant

HOUGHTON — A $15,825 grant to strengthen Michigan Tech's graduate program in science has been awarded to the University by the National Science Foundation. It will be administered by Dr. Donald G. Yerg, Michigan Tech dean of graduate studies.

THE COPPER PEAK SKI-FLYING TOWER, the first of its kind in the Western Hemisphere, is ready for winter action. The Tower is the largest artificial 120 meter slide in the world and stands 250 feet high. The jump, located near Ironwood in the Upper Peninsula, will get its true test late in February when it will be the scene of a world jumping meet. Jumps exceeding 540 feet are expected. Tech Has Women Who Really Count

HOUGHTON — They even have women students now.

That was one light definition of the growth of Michigan Technological University given by a businessman.

In fact, the university has about 450 women students included in its enrollment of 4,700.

These students mean a lot to this small community. They bring in dollars to support local merchants and they buy local services. And because they and the university are there, the community is offered a rich cultural diet — plays, concerts and lectures — that otherwise would be far away.

But it's the Tech women other than women students who really count, says Raymond L. Smith, university president. He referred to wives of Tech students.

"If we didn't have those wives to draw on we would be dead," Smith commented. They are the secretaries and other office personnel of the university.

The wives are there and the university is prospering in terms of enrollment and physical facility growth.

Ten years ago, Tech had an enrollment of 2,700 students; five years ago it was about 3,300; and in the last five years the school has experienced a growth of about 1,400 students, bringing its enrollment to 4,700.

"To us that's a lot," Smith said in placing the enrollment growth in perspective.

He explained that the United States has had fewer engineering and science graduates in the last 20 years than it had previously. The trend in technical schools has been away from rapid growth.

To meet enrollment demands, Tech spent about $26 million for buildings that have been completed since 1965.

Work is underway on an $8 million facility for the mechanical engineering department.

And a campaign to raise $4 million for physical growth has been launched.

Among the first to contribute were the students. They voted to tax themselves, in form of an added quarterly fee, to contribute $1.8 million.

The spending has been for the benefit of the university but nonetheless the community benefited.

From 30 per cent to 40 per cent of money spend on construction ended up as wages for local construction workers.

In expanding, the university built its annual payroll to about $9 million. The most recent figures for total personal income in Houghton County is about $55 million a year.

One other contribution, not economical, just fun — the student's annual winter carnival, a collection of ice sculpture and winter sports.

Credit Outlook In Agriculture Appears Dismal

EAST LANSING — Farmers can expect high interest rates and restrictive monetary policies in 1970.

According to agricultural economists at Michigan State University, the short-range agricultural credit outlook is dismal. Though some economic indicators suggest that prime interest rates may be lower in 1970, this will not substantially affect the squeeze on agricultural loans, they believe. Strong demand for borrowed capital is going to keep interest rates high.

Production credit associations and federal land banks will continue to feel the credit squeeze, especially when they enter the money markets in search of additional funds, Economists said. The tight money situation will also slow the land market, and the proportion of land sold on land contract is likely to increase.

Dairy Income To Gain

MSU agricultural economists predict that gross income from dairying will be up in 1970. However, increased production costs and lagging per capita consumption will continue to be major problems.

Not since 1964 has U. S. milk production risen over the previous year. Now however, the lower rate of decline in cow numbers and the continual climb in production per cow should result in a turnabout of this trend.

Generally, prices paid to dairy farmers in 1970 are expected to be about the same or slightly higher than in 1969, the MSU agricultural economists say.

Demand For Beef

Slight supply increases in beef cattle may occur in the new year, because catlemen are withholding heifers from the market to build up breeding herds. Nevertheless, with more meat eaters being added daily to the population due to the steady rising affluence of our society, demand continues to grow.

Prices for Choice cattle in Chicago are expected to move into the $31-32 per hundred-weight range in the first part of 1970.

The high profit situation in pork which occurred this past fall and favorable corn-hog price ratios have prompted swine producers to plan on producing more animals in 1970. Returns to swine growers in the first half of 1970 should be comparable to those during the same period of 1969. After July, however, prices may decline drastically as supplies increase.

Egg Prices To Fall

Prices paid to producers for eggs in 1970 are expected to average below 1969 levels. However, MSU forecasters believe that eggs will probably start the year slightly higher than in early 1969 then work downward during the year. The greatest difference, they say, will occur in the last quarter of 1970 when prices will decline as much as 10c a dozen below the favorable levels of the Oct.-Dec. quarter of 1969.

The U. S. and world wheat supply situation indicates downward pressure on price. Wheat disappearance during 1969-1970, including exports, is again likely to trail current production. This will add to the carryover for the third year in a row.

Heavy Corn Use

The prospects are strong for heavy corn use in 1970, the MSU agricultural economists say. Demand will increase due to the greater total number of animal and poultry units expected in the new year. Corn buyers are urged to contract early for their needs for the first eight or nine months of 1970.

Tree fruit production in 1970 is dependent largely on weather conditions in primary growing areas. Nevertheless, the MSU forecasters see expanding bearing acreages in apples, pears, prune-plums, sweet and tart cherries, and cling peaches in the new year.

More bearing acreage and higher yields per acre point to increasing tree fruit production during the next several years.

Joseph B. Gucky, Stephenson, Dies

STEPHENSON — Joseph B. Gucky, 63, superintendent of the Stephenson Public Schools since 1945, died this morning at his home.

He was born on Feb. 28, 1906, in Buffalo, N.Y., and was married to the former Alice Van-Enkevort of Escanaba on June 29, 1932, in Crown Point, Ind.

He attended Ferris State College for two years before receiving his BS degree from the University of Chicago in 1934 and his master's degree from the University of Michigan in 1943.

Gucky was superintendent of the Harris Township Schools from 1929 to 1945, when he moved to Stephenson. He was a member of the Church of the Precious Blood and the Stephenson Lions Club.

Gucky was also past district governor of Lions International, International Counselor and Chairman of the Upper Peninsula Lions Student Loan Fund, president of the Menominee MEA for 10 years, and member of the board of directors of the Upper Peninsula Association of School Board Superintendents. He also was a member of the State Teachers Education Committee, regional chairman of the U.P. Regional Conference, a member of the U.P. State Curriculum Planning Committee, belonged to the U.P. Athletic Committee, member of the Yearbook Commission of the American Association of School Administrators, president of the Stephenson Community Development Corp. and secretary of the Stephenson Area Chamber of Commerce.

He was also the co-author of two books, "The Superintendency" and "The High School In A Changing World," a contributor to state and national educational publications, a lecturer at the University of Wyoming Teachers College and Columbia University.

Gucky was listed in the Who's Who in American Education, received national recognition for experiments in community school concepts and was honored as an outstanding school administrator by the MEA, Region 17, in 1969.

He is survived by his widow; one son, Gerrit, of Lansing; three grandchildren; his father, John Gucky Sr. of Pine Ridge; one brother John Gucky Jr., also of Pine Ridge; two sisters, Augusta Crowley of Pine Ridge and Helen Massoni of Chicago.

Friends may call at the Diehm Funeral Home in Stephenson after 2 p.m. Sunday and funeral services will be conducted Monday at 10 a.m. at the Church of the Precious Blood with Rev. John V. Suhr officiating. Burial will be in the Gardens of Rest Cemetery in Escanaba. A memorial has been established for a scholarship fund.

Mrs. Christensen Dies Thursday In Munising

MANISTIQUE — Mrs. Fred Christensen, 85, of Deer St. died Thursday at the Munising Memorial Hospital. The former Cora Dauze was born May 25, 1884 in Rapid River and her husband died Aug. 1, 1939.

She is survived by one son, Fred, of Manistique; three grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Friends may call at the Messier - Broullire Funeral Home after 7 p.m. today and complete funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday at the funeral home with the Rev. Arnold Grambow officiating. Burial will be in the Fairview Cemetery in the spring.

Death Claims Mrs. S. Lines

Mrs. Sophia Dorothea Lines, 82, of 705 1/2 Delta Ave. died Wednesday at the Flint Osteopathic Hospital. She was born Nov. 7, 1887 in Necedah, Wis. and her husband Fred died Aug. 28, 1945.

She is survived by one brother, Wallace Sonstagen of Menasha, Wis.; one stepson, Raymond F. Lines of Detroit, a foster daughter, Laverne Bryers of Schwartz Creek, Mich. and several nieces and nephews.

Complete funeral services will be conducted at the Skradski Funeral Home at 2 p. m. Saturday and burial will be in Gardens of Rest Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home from 7 to 9 p. m. today.

Glenn A. Butts of Escanaba has been transferred to Minneapolis, Minn., reported local Draft Board officials.

Gladstone Man Hurt In Mishap

A Gladstone man underwent surgery this morning at St. Francis Hospital for treatment of injuries he received in a snowmobile accident Wednesday afternoon.

According to State Police, Jule Potvin, 56, 606 Dakota Ave., Gladstone, suffered serious injuries when he lost control of his snowmobile and struck a tree.

Police said Potvin was heading west on County Rd. 442 when he struck a large pile of snow and careened into a tree. The road was unplowed, police reported.

Potvin was taken immediately to St. Francis Hospital where he was listed in fair condition prior to today's surgery.

7 Million Tons Move Through Marquette Docks

MARQUETTE — The volume of iron ore moving through Marquette loading docks into lake freighters topped the seven-million-ton mark for the third time in 1969, ending the greatest shipping decade in the history of this Lake Superior port.

The 1960's may have seen the end of banner shipping seasons here, since Chicago & North Western Railroad expects to handle larger ore volumes from the Marquette Range through its loading facility in Escanaba.

All-time high marks were set four times in the past seven years. A record of 5,658,672 tons set in 1941 stood until 1963, when the volume loaded at the Lake Superior & Ishpeming and Soo Line docks reached 5,691,420 tons.

More than 41 million tons — most of it pellets processed at Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. plants — has been shipped out of Marquette since then, in the following annual totals:

Tonnage
1964 — 6,975,991
1965 — 6,312,176
1966 — 7,125,442
1967 — 7,249,098
1968 — 6,333,226
1969 — 7,016,873

Officials of both railroads said only routine maintenance work would be undertaken at the two docks during the winter in preparation for resumption of shipping in April.

FOR THOSE WHO waited out the new year in liquid celebration, awaking on the new calendar may seem more headaches. But this feline, whose name is Adventure, the new year should bring no more headaches than the old one. He toasted the new decade with champagne glass of milk, then slept through the decade change with hardly a hoot. (AP Wirephoto)

Beef Industry Meetings Slated

Farmers and part-time farmers in the beef cow-calf business will be given an opportunity to learn more about their enterprise in a series of meetings scheduled at the Rapid River school, the Michigan State University extension service announced today.

Meetings will be held at 7:30 p. m. Jan. 14, 21 and 28 and Feb. 4 and Feb. 11.

Topics to be covered are:

Jan. 14—Upper Peninsula beef cattle industry and its potentials for the 70's; Efficient pasture production for beef cow-calf program; The possibilities of using a horse in your beef management program.

Jan. 21—Winter feed requirements and winter management of the cow herd; New developments in increasing forage yields in Michigan; Selection and management of a herd sire.

Jan. 28—Diseases causing infertility and abortion; Wintering and grazing feeder calves; Calfhood diseases.

Feb. 4—Summer management of the beef cow herd; Beef cattle handling facilities; Preconditioning feeder cattle—How important are they to buyers.

Feb. 11—Changing the genetic ability of commercial beef cow herds; Methods of increasing weaning weights in feeder calves; Crossbreeding beef cattle.

At least seven different specialists will speak in the series. Notes will be prepared and issued to participants.

The meetings will be open to anyone interested.

They were arranged as a cooperative project by extension directors Gail Bowers, Menominee County; Dean Rhoads, Dickinson County; Mel Nyquist, Marquette County; J. L. Heirman, Delta County; Arvid Norlin, Alger County; and Howard Handorf, Schoolcraft County.

City Council To Meet On Monday

The Escanaba City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 5, in the Civic Center. The date was changed from Thursday, Jan. 1, because of the holiday.

On the agenda are: A report on the utilization of gas as primary fuel at the city electric plant; request for authorization to expend $6,700 for replacement repairs at the electric plant.

Resignation of Frank Daley from the General Appeals Board and the naming of a successor; and the resignation of Robert Crepeau from the Water and Sewerage Advisory Committee.

State Police Arrest Youths

Two Escanaba youths were arrested by State Police New Year's Eve and charged with being minors in possession.

Thomas Porath, 18, and his brother, Rodney Porath, 17, both of Escanaba, were arrested about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday by police in Bark River Township after being found in possession of alcoholic beverages.

On Christmas Day of 1855, the Royal Canadian Rifles, stationed in Kingston, Ont. cleared snow from the harbor, tied skates to boots, borrowed field-hockey sticks and an old lacrosse ball and began a new game—hockey on ice.

Five Injured In Traffic Mishaps

Five persons were injured and one continues in fair condition in St. Francis Hospital today following traffic accidents in the city over the New Year's holiday, it is reported by city police.

Timothy B. Taylor, 19, of 302 N. 12th St., suffered head injuries in the collision of two cars at 5th and Ludington Sts. at 3:40 a.m. on Jan. 1. He was unconscious after the accident, but has regained consciousness and is reported in fair condition.

Taylor was a passenger in a car driven by Terrence B. Monson, 20, of Escanaba Rte. 1. Monson was uninjured.

The other car was driven by Edwin A. Olson, 65, of 914 S. 15th St. His wife, Vivian, suffered minor injuries. Police ticketed Olson for failing to yield the right of way.

Two persons were hurt in the collision of a car driven by Jerry W. Hill of Rapid River, which struck a parked auto owned by Herbert Erickson, 1123 N. 16th St., at 12:08 a.m. in the 1100 block, N. 16th St., on Jan. 1.

Hill and his wife, Pat, suffered minor injuries. He was ticketed for failing to exercise due care.

In another traffic mishap at Stephenson Ave. and 3rd Ave. N. at 3:40 a.m. Dec. 31, Dorothy Johnson of Gladstone, passenger in a car driven by Dorothy Gregory of 729 N. 15th St., Gladstone, suffered minor injuries.

The driver of the other car, Robert H. Engman, 19, of Lansing, was ticketed for failing to exercise due care.

Among drivers arrested for traffic violations was James

M. Kornved, 18, of 1328 Stephenson Ave., who police said was arrested after he sought to outrun the police patrol at 1:28 a.m. Jan. 1.

Officers reported that Kornved drove at speeds in excess of 80 miles an hour with lights out and created dangerous conditions for other motorists. He was halted at Sylvan Point when his car went out of control and into a snow bank.

Charged with reckless driving, he was lodged in jail, then released on bond and is to appear in District Court.

Traffic court notices were issued by officers to Lawrence J. Boudreau, 316 S. 17th, improper turn; Paul A. Besson, 609 S. 16th St., speeding; Glen A. Meunier, 409 S. 12th St., and Robert W. Pearson, 521 S. 11th St., failing to exercise due care.

Agreement

Sportsmen in the United States frequently have been at odds with the National Park Service over its policies toward public hunting.

Long-standing federal policy prohibits public hunting in national parks. Even when game animals were lost through starvation because there were too many of them for the range to support, the Park Service remained adamant in its refusal to allow hunters to harvest the surplus animals. This happened on Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior, where moose starved to death each winter until a colony of timber wolves established itself on the island and kept the moose herd in balance with its range.

The running battle between sportsmen and the Park Service picked up tempo when Stewart Udall was Secretary of the Interior (under whose jurisdiction the Park Service functions) and proposed federal control over all hunting and fishing on federal lands. This would have included all federal lands, even those administered by the U. S. Forest Service, which is part of the Department of Agriculture, State game departments and sportsmen protested vigorously against the proposal, and fortunately it was never adopted.

Now, a milestone agreement has been reached between a state agency and the Park Service on management of wildlife in the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore in Alger County. Called a "memorandum of understanding" between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the Park Service, the agreement establishes the responsibility of the Park Service to manage the habitat in the Pictured Rocks "park" but provides the harvesting of fish and game will be under state control. This guarantees that hunting and fishing in the Pictured Rocks Lakeshore will be under state regulation, as it is on other federal lands in the Upper Peninsula, including the Hiawatha and Ottawa National Forests, the Seney National Wildlife Refuge and the Sylvania Recreation Tract. The agreement represents a victory for the position espoused by the sportsmen and state game departments.

Approved by the Michigan Natural Resources Commission, the memorandum reserves the Park Service's authority to prohibit hunting or fishing in high-use areas, which is proper. But it explicitly states that hunting and fishing will be regulated under state laws which prescribe licenses, seasons and bag limits. This recognition of the state's right to control hunting and fishing on federal lands is significant because that right has been under attack in recent years by Udall and others.

Under terms of the agreement, law enforcement will be a joint responsibility. The agreement also provides that representatives of the DNR and the Park Service will meet at least once a year to discuss "matters relating to the management of natural resources on lands and waters within Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore."

The Park Service agrees under the memorandum's terms to practice "those forms of resource management that will benefit fish and wildlife and enhance opportunities for their harvest by the public" and to consult the DNR before establishing any "no hunting" or "no fishing" times or zones or issuing any other regulations affecting public hunting and fishing rights. The DNR agrees to consult the Park Service before establishing any special hunting or fishing seasons or regulations within the lakeshore.

Both parties ought to find the agreement completely satisfactory.

Peninsula Potpourri

Two Dickinson County law enforcement officers, Sheriff Ferdinand Girard and Norway Police Chief Edwin Meneghini, have joined other police officials in declaring war on the U. S. Department of Defense for ruling that small American flag patches or pins worn on the lapels of police uniforms are "not proper or desirable."

"We're going to continue to wear them," Girard stated flatly. "We will show them we are Americans, proud of our country and ready to stand by it." Displaying the American flag in a respectful manner is proper at all times," Meneghini said. "It is a way of showing patriotism and is a very good idea. We will continue to wear them." In downstate Muskegon Heights, Police Chief James J. Farkas declared: "If demonstrators can stand on the streets of the capital and wave the Viet Cong flag without penalty, then it's going to take the Army to get those flag patches off the uniforms of Muskegon Heights police." Many police forces throughout the nation have made American flag pins or patches part of their uniforms.

Iron Mountain Mayor Philip Rahoi was criticized by Alderman John (Tim) Elmer for Rahoi's involvement in police department business. He also asked the mayor who was running the police department. "I'm the mayor, I'm the boss," Rahoi answered. He claimed he got involved because he was opposed to payment of overtime for regular patrolmen when the council had approved hiring of a part-time police officer to fill in for men on vacation or sick leave. During questioning by Elmer, Rahoi admitted that the part-time officer also was working in the city's public works department and was eligible to work more than 40 hours a week for the city without drawing overtime. However, it was pointed out that he has received larger pay than regular patrolmen because of his combined hours for the public works and police departments.

White Pine Copper Co awarded 11 prizes, including three color television sets, in its safety motivation program. All company employees who worked without a lost-time accident during the year were eligible for the prizes. Winners of the color TV sets were mine conveyorman Eino R. Haanala of White Pine, power plant shift foreman David Gregory of Ontonagon and standards analyst Jess Gilmer of Bergland.

1. There are many ways of making the slam if the North-South cards are favorably divided—for example, by a successful spade finesse, or by ruffing two of dummy's hearts in the hope of dropping the king, or by a diamond finesse, or by finding South with the singleton or doubleton queen of diamonds.

However, to maximize your chances, you should play in roughly the following order: Win the club in either hand, cash the ace of hearts, and return to dummy with a club.

Ruff a heart, play a diamond to the ace, and ruff another heart. If the king has not appeared, play a diamond to the king and lead the queen of hearts.

If South follows low or shows out, you can assure the slam by discarding your last diamond, for after winning with the king North is bound to be stymied. If he returns a diamond, dummy's fourth diamond becomes a trick; if he leads anything else, you also acquire a twelfth trick.

If South covers the queen of hearts with the king, ruff and lead a diamond toward dummy's J-3. If North follows suit, you are home; if he shows out, you still have the spade finesse to fall back on.

All told, your chance of making the slam by this succession of plays comes close to 100 per cent.

2. You start by assuming that North has the king of spades, for if South has it you make the contract with a simple spade finesse. You also assume that North's seven is his fourth best heart, which means he may have led from either K-Q-8-7-x, K-10-8-7-x, or Q-10-8-7-x. (With K-Q-10-7-x, he presumably would have led the king.)

The best way of coping with these three possibilities is to go up with the ace at trick one. This method of play fails in the first case, but succeeds in the next two cases even though North has the spade king.

The effect of rising with the ace is that the defenders' hearts get blocked if South has K-x or Q-x, while ducking the opening heart lead permits South to win and return a heart, thus unblocking the suit.

Few Investors Made Money In '69 Market

By DON BATTLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, haunted by monetary restrictions and the Vietnam war, was scared into one long retreat in 1969.

And if you were an investor who made money, consider yourself one of a fortunate minority.

"Most investors are not unhappy to see 1969 fade into history," commented the Alexander Hamilton Institute Inc., an investment advisory group.

The investor, however, was not alone in his financial misery, for 1969's bearish claws also ripped into end-of-the-year bonuses for many brokerage employees. Bonuses, running as high as the equivalency of six-month's pay in a good year, were either drastically cut or nonexistent this year, as houses wrestled with the realities of rising costs, a poor market and increasing paperwork.

Trading Drops

Trading was off, as an estimated 4.08 billion shares changed hands the past year on both the New York and the American Stock Exchanges, compared with 4.33 billion shares in 1968. Even with the dip, 1969 proved the second busiest year ever—next to 1968—for both exchanges.

The past year, as in 1968, was marked by abbreviated trading sessions to allow brokerage houses to catch up with the mounting paper backlogs.

On Dec. 31, 1969, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues, a blue chip barometer, closed at 943.75. A year later, it hovered about the 790 mark, representing a net loss of 15 per cent over the year.

Measuring the Dow Jones high in December 1968 with the 1969 low of 769.93 last Dec. 17, the decline in the average was 22 per cent.

The Associated Press 60-stock average lost nearly 100 points over the 12 months.

No Extended Strength

"There was no extended period during 1969 when the market can truly be described as having exhibited convincing strength," Stanley A. Nabl of Schweickart & Co., a New York investment firm, commented. "From the year's very inception there was significant erosion on a broad front."

The market was forced to digest such unpalatable economic news as three boosts in the prime rate—the fee banks charge their most creditworthy customers—to a record 8 1/4 per cent, as the government sought to dampen inflation. The tight money conditions led to a leveling off of many companies' profits, also a market depressant.

Besides tight money, the Vietnam war fueled investor uncertainty, with the market spurring up on days that peace hopes brightened and down when those hopes didn't materialize.

High In May

The Dow Jones average hit its yearly high on May 14—968.85—the day President Nixon delivered one of his major addresses on the Vietnam war. Analysts attributed the preceding rise to investor hopes that the President would announce a major breakthrough in the war.

That night the President urged a mutual withdrawal of troops by both sides, but the Viet Cong rejected the offer, and the market ebbed. Other market spurts, based on similar Vietnam expectations, occurred throughout the year.

Monetary restrictions, uncertainty over the Vietnam war and an unusually severe rash of tax selling helped push the market to its yearly low points in December. Tax selling proved particularly heavy in the past year due to investor belief that a greater number of net tax losses could be taken in 1969 than under the tax reform bill effective in 1970.

Bear Market Year

Bleak as 1969 was, analysts saw it as just another bear market year.

"Actually, the drop of 1969 was a phenomenon totally within the context of the postwar experience," commented Anthony W. Tabell of Walston & Co., an investment house, "and has been, within the standards of such experience, on the relatively mild side."

Indeed, 1969 was exceeded in severity by the declines of 1946, 1947, 1949, 1957, 1962, and 1968, he added.

"None of this, admittedly, is calculated to make the investor feel any better about his 1969 losses," Tabell said. "It is simply a reminder that difficult years such as the past one have appeared before in stock market history and will undoubtedly recur again."

1970 Good Year?

Judging from the years that immediately followed post-World War II bear markets, 1970 should turn out to be a good year for the stock market.

The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index in mid-December ran 19 per cent behind its high for the year. Similar percentage drops also were recorded in 1946, 1948, 1957, 1962, and 1966. In four of these five cases where there were 19 per cent drops, the year that followed the bear market was substantially higher, ranging from 40 per cent in 1949-1950 to 24 per cent in 1966-1967. Only one instance—1946-1947—was the average unchanged.

Moreover, various investment services see a market upturn paralleling the standard economic forecast of a slow first half, followed by an upswing in the second half.

Standard & Poor's annual 1970 forecast is for "early cloudiness, followed by clearing."

The investment service cautioned investors to practice restraint but "to be prepared for a solid upturn in the market that should be spurred by institutional buying power now being held in reserve."

"The two stumbling blocks—the Vietnam war and monetary restraints—which sent the market reeling during 1969 continue to hold it in check," the service said. "However, prospects are developing for easing of pressure in both areas that could lend impetus to an important rebound next year."

The winds of change in monetary restrictions were seen in the latter days of 1969 in statements by Dr. Arthur F. Burns, who will assume the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board on Feb. 1, and by Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Monetary Review

Both indicated that a reconsideration of present monetary restraints as imposed by the Federal Reserve may be in order. They had as backdrops for their statements dire predictions from some economists that the nation is headed for a recession in 1970.

Goodbody & Co., a New York investment firm, predicts: "After some hesitation in the early months of 1970, stock prices could—as in 1967—begin to anticipate a business recovery later in the year and the growth expected in the economy in the early 70s."

World Should Enter 1970s With Humility

BY JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

DUBLIN, Ireland.—I happen to be writing this first 1970 column while traveling, and the perspective on one's own country that supposedly comes with distance should enable me to give some added sharpness to the traditional predictions for a New Year that coincides with the beginning of a New Decade.

But distance does not lend certainty. It is all too humbling to recall the brave prophecies of 10 years ago, when everyone was talking about the Soaring Sixties. Instead they turned out to be the Sick Sixties.

Nobody, to my memory, foresaw the burning, looting and killing in the ghettos—indeed, the very word "ghetto" belonged to a time in history when Jews were compelled by law to be inside their houses at the curfew hour, and we manifestly didn't have anything like that.

The Beat Generation hadn't yet become the Hippie Degeneration; the drug craze hadn't blighted our urban high schools and skipped to the suburbs; college was a place where you went to read books; it was still at least mildly respectable to be patriotic; assassinations were something that happened in Iraq; Cuba's Fidel Castro hadn't yet revealed himself as the century's greatest cheat; the Vietnam hadn't become a running sore. We were doing all right, Jack (meaning Jack Kennedy), and life was going to be a lark, at least in the United States.

As events soon disclosed, the Sixties made monkeys of all the prophets. The U. S., which began the decade on a higher elevation of well-being than the rest of the world, had the farthest to fall. And as it fell, our foreign friends gave us a delighted kick or two on our way down.

They were still at the business of kicking us a very short while ago. But a reading of the foreign press now discloses a new tendency.

The news of the Pinkville "Massacre" should, logically, have caused a final orgy of finger-pointing at alleged U. S. depravities, but it isn't happening that way.

Thus the Foreign Editor of the London Express, while recognizing the "evils" and "rank injustices" in American society, sees us tackling our problems with "a vigour and above all an honesty which is both compelling and refreshing."

In Stockholm and Oslo there are many who consider the U. S. the equal of Nero's Rome, but your average Scandinavian pacifist is at least fairly consistent when it comes to finger-pointing. He does not absolve the British, who continue to make excuses for giving arms to Nigerians who are doing their best to starve out the Biafran children in the bloodiest of tribal wars.

A group of Scandinavian scientists in Oslo make the horrified — and horrifying — statement that 10 times more Biafran kids have perished of hunger "than the total death casualties on both sides in the Vietnam War." Meanwhile the Moscow Communists are trying to persuade the authorities on the island of Fernando Po to stop the mercy planes which are using that point off the African coast as a staging area for carrying food to Biafra.

The government of North Ireland has been the target of many who think the Ulster Protestants get a better break than the minority Ulster Catholics. But the Prime Minister of North Ireland exhibited a becoming humility the other day before a score or more visiting journalists; he admitted such things as the slow pace of North Irish house building, and, in effect, pleaded for forbearance while his government tried to make amends for past errors.

Nixon was using a similar tone when talking of the Pinkville "massacre" just before I left home. And Mayor John Lindsay of New York took his opponents off guard last October by acknowledging that he had made serious mistakes.

If this is the way our leaders are to approach the Seventies, the next decade may not prove to be as sick as the last. There's nothing so curative as a humble and a contrite heart provided your opponent has a little capacity for grace on his own.

Ann Landers

Stewardess Asking Just Little Courtesy

Dear Ann Landers: I am a stewardess for one of the leading commercial airlines and I'm thoroughly disgusted with the insults and abusive treatment we are expected to tolerate from the public.

Most stewards are pleasant, well trained, and they try hard to be conscientious. They are interested in the comfort, safety and well-being of the passengers. It burns me up when passengers snap their fingers and yell, "Hey waitress, how about some more ice..." They treat us as if we were barmaids. I'd like to see the doll at their local pub evacuate 103 passengers in 90 seconds.

What I resent most is the completely false and highly publicized notion that every stew is shackled up with the pilot or the richest passenger in the first class section.

I am not suggesting that all stewards are vestal virgins, but if we played around half as much as people say we do we would not have enough strength to hang up a coat.

The flying public can have all the coffee or tea they want, but they can't have me — or any of the 30 stew I know personally. — Sally

Dear Sally: As a frequent traveler, I agree that most stewards are efficient, hard-working and try hard to please the passengers. Your letter says something that needed to be said and I'm happy to print it.

Dear Ann Landers: Why did you give a nod of approval to the young bride-to-be who said, "If people can't say anything good about marriage, I wish they would keep their big mouths shut."

There are plenty of people with rotten marriages who work overtime to create a nice picture for outsiders. We lived next door to such a couple and you wouldn't believe what went on. The four of us went to Chicago for the weekend last fall and we had adjoining hotel rooms. About midnight they started to argue. I've never heard such filthy language in all my life. What's more, "Mr. Wonderful" knocked "Sweetie Pie" around the room until 3:30 a.m.

The next morning when we met for breakfast, "Sweetie Pie" was smiling bravely through a fat lip. One eye was swollen shut. "I fell over some

Money Saver

LANSING (AP) — The state may save upwards of $100,000 a year with transfer of a small area of the Michigan Telephone Co. Dimondale exchange to the Lansing exchange, says the Michigan Commerce Department.

The transfer, approved by the State Public Service Commission, is expected to enable a new complex of state-owned buildings to be in the Lansing exchange.

Sea Lamprey Has No Rival In Great Lakes

By FRANK MAINVILLE
HAMMOND BAY (AP) — If you can overlook the parasitic way nature has provided him to survive, there is no more interesting species in the Great Lakes than the vicious sea lamprey.

Must Be Eliminated
Because of his ability to decimate populations of lake trout, burbot, whitefish and steelheads, the sea lamprey has no rival in the Great Lakes — as a species to be eliminated at all costs.

But while fish biologists decry the sea lamprey and conservation agencies fight to keep lampicide treatment funds to destroy him, medical researchers can't get enough of this most primitive vertebrate.

Here at the Hammond Bay Biological Station, sea lampreys are the most important species for Luis King, acting director, and his staff. They have sea lampreys in various stages of development growing everywhere.

Chinook Scarred
And they also have Chinook salmon which returned to nearby Ojibwa River this fall 80 percent scarred and trailing one or more adult lampreys. Lampreys, which lack air bladders and paired fins most higher fish have, are poor swimmers and fall to the bottom if they don't swim constantly, King explains.

So they hitchhiked into the Great Lakes through the Welland Canal on the sides of fish and bottom of boats after the canal was opened in 1811. And it took over 100 years before they became really evident, he notes.

Lake Trout Hit
"A few years after the first reported spawning runs, heavy predation began on lake trout," King points out.

Interestingly, landlocked sea lamprey and lake trout have co-existed for at least 100 years—possibly since the retreat of the glaciers thousands of years ago—in Lake Ontario and the Finger Lakes of New York.

But on these lakes, trout survival is relatively low and populations cannot withstand fishing pressure without hatchery plantings.

Sea lampreys spawn in the gravel riffles of streams during spring and early summer—in depressions made by moving stones into a horseshoe barrier.

When they hatch, the larvae burrow into the bottom and spend three to nine years as sedentary ammocetes — sightless but light sensitive when removed from the safety of burrows to a laboratory tray when only a few weeks old.

Eyes Not Developed
They have eye spots but do not develop eyes or their sucker-like mouth and teeth until they reach a length of about seven inches and metamorphose from a filter-feeder living on small organisms pumped into their burrows for respiration to a fully-developed parasite.

The metamorphosis takes place without a noticeable change in size — the eye develops and teeth develop on the mouth and tongue making it capable of rasping its way through the scales of a fish.

To complete the equipment as a parasite, its salivary glands secrete saliva containing two chemicals — one, a histolytic agent, dissolves tissue and the other, an anti-coagulant, similar to that used for medical purposes, keeps the host fish's wound from healing.

Researchers Interested
Medical researchers are interested in the sea lamprey because of its aneurial heart—there are no nerve connections in its cardiac system, explains King. "The lamprey has a pace-making chemical in its system which makes its heart beat," he points out. "It has been extracted, isolated and identified. "And when it was injected into the heart of a laboratory animal with an interrupted heart beat, the heart of the animal was rejuvenated."

Thus the sea lamprey, a known curse on fish, could be a blessing to mankind if this chemical could be adapted or perhaps synthesized and used for human heart arrest victims. "Medical people are concerned about the reduced supply of sea lampreys," King reveals. "As we become more effective with our lampicides, we have fewer to supply them."

Lampreys In Demand
"Lampreys are in demand by physiologists, biochemists and immunologists. One Nobel prize winner, Dr. George Wall of Harvard, studied the eye of the lamprey."

Immunologists use the lamprey because it has a very primitive but single immune response in producing antibodies, is quick to recognize foreign tissue and reject grafts. And its hemoglobin system is unique in the vertebrate kingdom in its protein chemical composition. The molecular weight is greater than that of man but it has only one blood group.

More primitive than even the sharks and rays, the lamprey assimilates oxygen through internal gills — it goes through a membrane and is pumped in and out of gill pouches.

Spawning Ends Life
Spawning ends the life of the sea lamprey — as it does the salmon — if fish and insect predators don't eat him or if the lampicide TFM, screened from 6,000 chemicals, doesn't kill him in his burrow as an ammocete.

If he lives to the metamorphosis stage, the sea lamprey makes his way downstream with few stops and becomes a feeding parasite for one to two years.

60,000 Eggs Laid
In the Atlantic Ocean the lamprey may grow to a maximum of 22.2 inches but the Great Lakes specimen averages only 12 to 15 inches and 1.1 pounds at spawning.

"Nature has provided the lamprey the ability to survive," King points out. "The average lamprey lays 60,000 eggs and the species is polygamous—the eggs may be fertilized by more than one male."

Thanks to the Hammond Bay Station, operated by the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries for the International Great Lakes fishery Commission, the sea lamprey may be controlled or adapted to the pressures put upon him—as he must have down through the centuries.

But if he ever becomes extinct, Nature will have lost one of its most interesting—though vicious—species.

Working Hours For Women Set Higher By Act

LANSING (AP) — Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley reports a Michigan law limiting employed women to a 10-hour work day is in conflict with the 1964 Federal Civil Rights Act.

Kelley's opinion holds that women now may work more than 10 hours a day and 55 hours a week if employed by firms with more than 25 employees. Firms with fewer than 25 employees still would be covered by the 10-55 limitation, he said.

Michigan, Kelley said, is only the fourth state to review the possibility of conflict in its state antidiscrimination laws.

"Since Michigan has no law limiting the number of hours a man may work, a woman is denied the same rights to overtime compensation as her male counterpart, in direct violation of the Federal Act," Kelley wrote.

He added: "This limitation on the number of hours a woman may work tends to prevent the promotion of women to supervisory positions which might require longer hours than the state law permits."

California, North and South Dakota attorneys general have reached similar conclusions about laws in their respective states, Kelley said. The Kentucky attorney general ruled contrarily, but one of two cases used in reaching that opinion has been reversed, Kelley said.

Interest Rates Hiked For FHA-VA Home Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maximum interest rates allowed on government-insured FHA and VA home loans will be boosted for the second time within a year, becoming a record 8½ per cent as of next Monday.

Secretary of Housing George Romney reported he was reluctantly approving the increase from the current 7½ per cent maximum which has been in effect only since last Jan. 24.

Bad News For Buyers

The announcement was bad news for prospective home buyers who had hoped to see a stabilizing or reduction of interest rates which have been spiraling since early in 1966 when the limit was 5½ per cent for the loans backed by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration.

Romney said he had delayed as long as possible but he was forced to take the action to "help hold the line against a further drying up of mortgage funds from regular sources."

Higher Discounts Asked

He noted that market yields on most types of investments have gone up more than one percentage point in the past year and that lenders are demanding higher and higher discount points to make FHA-VA loans.

Lenders have been charging 7 to 9 per cent—or points—to make loans. Most of this usually is paid by the seller, but in effect may be passed on to the buyer in the form of a higher house price.

The one per cent boost in the interest ceiling—the largest increase ever—was applauded by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America and was condemned by the National Association of Home Builders.

"Housing is in a state of crisis, and today's government action to increase the FHA-VA mortgage interest ceiling to 8½ per cent is a substantial move to improve the situation," said Robert H. Pease, president of the mortgage bankers.

Louis R. Barba, acting president of the home builders group, issued a statement declaring the time has come for the administration to put into effect standby

Threat Of Death Reported In Kidnaping Case

LONDON (AP) — An anonymous letter delivered to the office of a suburban newspaper in North London today said the missing wife of a top British newspaper executive would be killed unless his papers "stop printing filth."

Muriel McKay

Muriel McKay, 55-year-old wife of Alex McKay, disappeared from their suburban home Monday. A telephone call shortly after, now regarded as a hoax, demanded ransom money of $2.1 million.

Scotland Yard detectives, who first believed the disappearance was a kidnaping for ransom, now are not sure this is the case. Repeated appeals for a concrete ransom demand have been ignored.

McKay is the acting chief of the world's biggest Sunday newspaper, the News of the World, which specializes in reporting sex crimes, and of the Sun, which regularly publishes semiregular pinups.

Calumet Woman Wounded In Bar

CALUMET (AP) — A 22-year-old woman was shot in the left arm while in the women's rest room of a downtown Calumet tavern early Thursday.

The woman was treated and released at a hospital. Police said the shot was apparently fired from an adjoining men's room.

A suspect was taken into custody and released pending further investigation, authorities said.

credit controls recently authorized by Congress.

"Current high interest rates have not visibly succeeded in curbing inflation but, on the contrary, seem to increase inflationary pressures by their contribution to higher costs," Barba said.

He said the Federal Reserve Board should act to ease money pressures.

Illegal In 6 States

Pease noted that the 8½ per cent rate would be illegal in at least six states—Indiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, South Dakota and Virginia—and the District of Columbia. He said these states could face a serious housing crisis unless their legislatures raise the current interest limits.

The new maximum rates will have no effect on the 8.2 million loans which have been made in the past, but they will result in higher monthly payments for persons getting FHA-VA new loans after Jan. 5.

Rate Reduction Eyed

Romney said lenders now processing loan applications would be expected to reduce the discount rates they charge to make the loan since they will be getting a higher interest yield, Romney said the prevailing discounts had produced a gross yield of 8.75 per cent on loans.

Commercial banks now have a prime rate of 8½ per cent—the interest charged to their best customers.

Interest rates have gone up in the face of government efforts to restrict credit to brake inflation. The high interest rates in other areas of the economy have drawn money away from housing.

Everything Fails

"Even the massive amounts of direct support to the mortgage market through the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Government National Mortgage Association and Federal Home Loan System have not been sufficient to sustain housing production at the levels needed," Romney said.

During the past decade the maximum rate has been changed nine times. Congress set the ceiling prior to May 1968 when the secretary of housing was given the authority to make adjustments to meet market demands.

The rate ceiling was 6½ per cent at this time last year.

Below Freezing Weather Hits Southern U.S.

By The Associated Press

Arctic cold numbed wide areas of the nation today and dropped temperatures below freezing as far south as the Florida Panhandle and the central Gulf Coast.

Snow fell in the Cascades and the Rockies and also was scattered through the northern and central Plains, the Midwest, the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley.

In the West, snow ranged southward into southeastern New Mexico and northwestern Texas.

The mercury slid below zero in portions of 10 states hours before daybreak. Subzero readings were reported from Montana to New Mexico, in the Dakotas and in New York, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Only in southern Florida and the southern tip of Texas was there any real mildness.

Fog shrouded coastal sections of the Pacific Northwest, but most other areas west of the Rockies were under clear skies, as was the Eastern Seaboard.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 12 below zero at Glens Falls, N.Y., to 67 at Key West, Fla.

Some other reports: Boston 20 clear, New York 23 clear, Philadelphia 22 clear, Washington 25 clear, Atlanta 26 clear, Miami 63 cloudy, Detroit 23 cloudy, Chicago 22 snow, Minneapolis-St. Paul 18 snow, St. Louis 27 snow, Kansas City 23 cloudy, Dallas 40 cloudy, Denver 11 clear, Phoenix 42 clear, Los Angeles 50 clear, San Francisco 44 clear, Seattle 36 fog, Anchorage 30 snow, Honolulu 74 partly cloudy.

Russians Said To Be Having Case Of Nerves

Soviet troops in to crush a liberal movement. There is the deviationism of the Yugoslavs, whose Communist system allows suspiciously capitalist-looking innovations.

Headaches Reported

The document points out that there are opportunities, too, but even these are combined with headaches. How can the Soviet Communists reach out and embrace youth and student movements in the West when many in those movements view the Moscow Establishment as just as old-hat and dated as any other? Thus, the student movement must, the document warns, be approached with caution.

There would be opportunities abroad in such things as revival of the United Front idea of Stalin's day, to keep governments from annoying Moscow.

But even in this, there must be caution. While wooing the non-Communist left abroad, Communists must beware such enemies as "bourgeois reformists" whose support of reforms could dampen revolutionary ardor, and "bourgeois anarchists" who prefer China's sort of revolution.

Authority Threatened

While it jousts with so many foes, the Soviet Establishment seems to thirst for lessened tensions so more attention can be given to internal problems. Those problems in the long pull could threaten party authority.

But complication piles upon complication.

The Theses call for "deep changes" in the Soviet economy, for "modern more rational systems of organization and management in production," so that living standards can be raised. But this smacks heavily of reform, and reform menaces an entrenched bureaucracy. And so, the document suggests that the economy must wait because "great resources of the state must be applied to defense" against those lurking imperialists.

Perhaps the answer is peaceful coexistence? Here there is another complication. It might inhibit the Communist revolution.

Some Freedom Lacking

Do citizens of Communist countries want more freedom? They already have "political freedom" of speech, press, assembly and so forth," the document insists. But this "excludes 'freedom' of anti-socialist propaganda and 'freedom' to organize counterrevolutionary forces." That is, there is full freedom to agree with Moscow.

Efforts To Change Time Hitting Snag

LANSING (AP) — The president of the State Chamber of Commerce said today his organization's efforts to acquire enough petition signatures to force another referendum on Daylight Saving Time apparently have failed.

Harry Hall made the comment in a telephone interview with Bob Lee of WWTV in Cadillac. Hall said the Chamber circulated nearly 85,000 petitions in its drive to acquire the nearly 197,000 signatures needed to force another referendum on the issue.

However, Hall reported that only about 10,000 petitions with 150,000 signatures have been turned in. He said today's mail may bring more signatures but "undoubtedly we will not have enough. So, at the moment, it looks like we've lost."

Hall said the Legislature could still place the issue on the ballot if it wishes but today is the deadline for the petition method of providing another vote in the Daylight Savings Time issue.

Michigan voters rejected Daylight Saving Time in 1968 although it required a recount to determine that the question had been defeated by 490 votes. The state is one of only three in the nation which does not observe Daylight Time from late April until late October.

The Israeli air force returned meanwhile to the Suez Canal area to attack Egyptian military positions along the central portion of the canal, the Israeli command announced. A spokesman said all planes returned safely.

On the diplomatic front, repercussions continued in the wake of the successful circumvention of the French arms embargo by the five gunboats that escaped from Cherbourg Christmas morning. They arrived in Haifa New Year's Eve.

The Elks Auxiliary meeting for January has been canceled due to schedule complications.

The Wells Lions Club will meet Jan. 5 at 7:30 p. m. at the Wells Township Hall. After the meeting movies will be shown. The public is invited.

Impellant Lodge 460, IOOF, will put on the 3rd Degree Monday at 7 p. m. The 3rd Degree team is urged to attend. There will be refreshments after the meeting.

The City of Escanaba Recreation Department announced today that the Danforth Ski Hill will be open to the public Saturday and Sunday afternoons from 1:30 to 4:30.

The Delta Merry Mixers will hold a square dance from 8 to 10:30 p.m. Sunday at the Flat Rock Town Hall. Steve Baltic will be the caller. Lunch will be served. Anyone interested will be welcome.

Wells Central PTA will meet at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 6 in the school multipurpose room. The program will be a get-acquainted gathering and lunch will be served, with Mrs. Marie Callahan and Mrs. Carol Butryn, in charge.

Guerrillas Picking Up Momentum In Israel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Five years ago this week, four Palestinian guerrillas from a refugee camp near Bethlehem rang in the new year by sneaking into Israel. Two of them blew up a water pump at El Koton, an Israeli settlement, with primitive bombs made of gunpowder and scrap iron.

The raid was a pinprick, but it was the first armed act against Israel by organized Palestinians, the start of a new guerrilla movement.

At the time of that first attack, the guerrillas say, they had 82 men. Now they claim 1,700 active fighters backed up by 20,000 support personnel, including cadres, men in training and youth groups.

The commanders who organized the first raid had to scrape up $1,000 to buy second-hand weapons. Arab guerrilla groups received $5.6 million in 1969, and Yasir Arafat, leader of the largest guerrilla organization, says he expects to get $19 million a year from now on.

The guerrillas' arms supply, mostly Russian and Chinese, is growing rapidly. They say they now launch 400 armed actions against Israel a month. These are mostly rocket and mortar attacks from Jordan, Syria or Lebanon, but they also include raids into Israeli-occupied territory and into Israel itself.

Arafat, a 40-year-old bachelor, is head of the Fatah guerrilla organization and chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, which loosely controls half a dozen resistance groups.

When he walked into the recent Arab summit conference in Rabat, Morocco, he was dressed in baggy pants, sneakers, dark glasses and a green ski jacket. But he was treated like a head of state by the other Arab potentates in their Bond Street suits, uniforms and luxurious robes.

The other leaders at the conference, unwilling to commit their own unprepared forces to an all-out war against Israel, left the field of action to Arafat, and he took the spotlight willingly.

One problem he faces, however, is a lack of unity.

Arafat claims that 97 per cent of all Arab guerrillas are in his Palestine Liberation Organization. But another major commando group, the leftist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, remains outside. Coordination is loose.

Arafat and other guerrilla leaders concede they have a long battle ahead, but they are unconcerned. After all, they point out, the Vietnamese have been fighting since World War II, and the Algerian FLN fought 13 years.

They believe Israel will weaken eventually. Then, they say, with the aid of the Arab armies, they will sweep to the Mediterranean and set up a nondenominational state in which Jew and Arab, Christian and Moslem, can live in peace.

Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist party, once wrote: "Guerrillas must swim among the people like fish in the sea."

The Palestine commandos have friendly seas around their target, although the Jordanian and Lebanese governments are reluctantly cooperative and the Syrians favor guerrilla operations from somebody else's territory.

But Israeli occupation forces on the West Bank of the Jordan and in the Gaza Strip make the going there dangerous, and inside Israel there are only small puddles for the guerrillas to splash in.

So the Palestinians' struggle is mainly a war of attrition from the outside. The Palestine commandos must snap at Israel's flanks.

The 1.4 million persons classified as Palestine refugees in Lebanon, Jordan, Syria and the Arab territories occupied by Israel in 1967 have looked to the commandos since the humiliating Arab defeat in the six-day war.

The commandos hand out food and medical services to the refugees and print a weekly paper for them. This year they sold Christmas cards to raise money for the cause.

And they are not fighting a corrupt dictatorship or a faltering colonial regime. Instead, they face a homogenous, highly skilled, tough nation whose people's will has been forged by centuries of persecution.

Big Counterfeit Ring Operating In Boston Area

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe said today more than $1 million in counterfeit money, stolen postal orders and bank checks have been passed in the Greater Boston area in the past month by female drug addicts working for the Mafia.

The girls were paid at least $200 a week, supplied with false identification to pass the checks, set up in motels and high-class apartments, and chauffeured to and from the areas they worked, the Globe said it had learned.

One girl, the newspaper reported, said: "pushing paper (bum money or checks) is an easy way to make money. I don't get any quails over it. I just want the money for the drugs."

The girls, mostly teen-agers, the story said, were recruited by the Mafia on Boston Common, the night club and theater district or in various narcotics hangouts throughout the city.

"You only work a few weeks at a time," one of the girls was quoted as saying, "because the clerks will recognize you. But you always can get a job later. They always can use somebody like me."

Early New Year's Toll Reaches 215

By The Associated Press

The nation's traffic death toll for the four-day New Year's weekend reached 215 today.

Snow fell in scattered areas of the Western mountains and in parts of the plains, the Midwest and the Great Lakes. Main roadways generally were clear and dry elsewhere.

The count of traffic deaths began at 6 p.m., local time, Wednesday and will end at midnight Sunday.

The New Year began tragically for the families of seven persons killed Thursday in highway accidents around Michigan.

Ice roads were blamed for at least one of the auto crashes. Two teenagers from rural Edwardsburg were killed when the car driven by Christopher Moore, 17, skidded on an icy stretch of road and crashed into a tree near their hometown in Cass County. Killed with him was 16-year-old Debra Myers.

Special Service Sunday At First Methodist

The First United Methodist Church, of Escanaba, will commence observance of its centennial year with a special service of worship on Sunday, Jan. 4, at 10:45 a.m.

This service will consist of the sacrament of Holy Communion and the opportunity for the individual worshiper to make or renew his covenant with God.

The form of this particular service was inaugurated by John Wesley on Aug. 11, 1753. Although the modern day communion service has seen many modifications, this may be the first time that many of the worshippers will have an opportunity to observe the original form of the service.

The church has decided to mark the centennial year by a series of monthly recognitions during the entire year 1970 with various agencies of the church participating. The responsibility for the January observance is that of the pastor, the Rev. David Liscomb.

The Centennial committee representing the various organizations within the church has been working for a number of months in planning the year's observance. Detailed listing of the events will be issued at a later date.

In addition to Rev. Liscomb, Mrs. Laura Nicholas, of the WSCS, Douglas Walker, of the choir, Lyle Plovman, of the church school, Lowell Hebbard, of the administrative board, Ellen Foster, of the MYF, Donald Ness, of the Methodist Men, and Dr. William Butt, who is serving as chairman, are members of the committee.

Rev. Martinson Guest Speaker At Immanuel

This Sunday, Jan. 4, the Rev. Paul Martinson who has served as a missionary of the American Lutheran Church in Hong Kong, will be the guest speaker at Immanuel Lutheran Church. He will speak at both the 9 and 10:40 a.m. worship services and show slides after each service in the youth hall.

Pastor Martinson is a third generation missionary. His grandparents arrived in China in 1902 and his grandfather died in 1907 but his wife stayed in China with her three children. Her son, Pastor Martinson's father, is serving as president of the Hong Kong Lutheran Seminary while a daughter works with college students on the island of Taiwan. Grandmother Martinson died in Hong Kong this past summer at the age of 100.

Rev. Martinson was born in China and has lived for much of his life in the Far East. He served as assistant pastor of Truth Lutheran Church in Hong Kong during his last term of service. He is now studying for his doctorate in the field of Chinese Religions at the University of Chicago.

The Martinsons have two children. Both of the children were born in Hong Kong where Mrs. Martinson also served as a public health nurse. She will speak at both sessions of the Sunday School following the worship services.

Anyone interested in learning more about Hong Kong, its problems and challenges is welcome to attend these services.

Mrs. Lawrence Kirschner (Gordon Nelson Studio)

Dorell Jo Butch And L. B. Kirschner Wed

Dorell Jo Butch and Lawrence Bruce Kirschner exchanged wedding vows during a four o'clock candlelight ceremony Saturday, Dec. 27 at the Memorial United Methodist Church of Gladstone.

Officiating at the nuptials before an altar adorned with lighted candelabra, white poinsettias and white pompons was the Rev. William Verhelst. White candles on pine boughs were burning in the church windows for the service and the Christmas tree was trimmed with gold tinsel.

Soloists
Soloists were Susan Nyberg and the bride's uncle, Paul Cowen. Providing traditional organ music for the wedding was Mrs. Wallace Cameron.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Butch of Gladstone and John Kirschner of Spalding and the late Mrs. Kirschner.

Maid of honor for her sister was Patricia Butch and bridesmaids were Mary Ann St. Vincent, Mrs. Thomas Butch, sister-in-law of the bride and Leroux Cowen, the bride's cousin.

Serving as best man for his brother was James Kirschner of Powers and groomsmen were Thomas Butch of Gladstone, Greg Christiansen of Wilson and Eugene Folcik of Powers.

Bridal Satin
The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white bridal satin trimmed with white maribou on the stand-away collar and waistband and maribou also bordered the chapel length train which was attached at the waist. Her long sleeves were gathered into a wide cuff and fastened with tiny satin buttons.

A white satin bow trimmed with white cording and seed pearls held her elbow length veil of silk illusion and she carried a white satin and maribou muffed adorned with a white orchid. Her only jewelry was an antique gold and pearl pendant, a gift of her grandmother.

Royal Blue Velvet
The bridal aides were attired in royal blue velvet gowns styled with stand-away collars and long sleeves and trimmed with silver and white braid at the waist and cuffs.

Circlet headpieces of royal blue maribou with matching veiling completed their attire and they carried nosegays of white feathered pompons and royal blue straw flowers with silver streamers.

Reception
The reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony followed by a dance at the American Legion Hall. The newlyweds are honeymooning in Milwaukee.

The couple will reside in St. Louis, Mo. where he is employed as an X-Ray technician and is a senior at St. Louis University. He is a graduate of Powers-Spalding High School, Deaconess Hospital X-Ray School and also attended Bay de Noc Community College.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Gladstone High School and graduated this spring from Bay de Noc College. She is a junior this year at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant and will continue her studies at St. Louis University.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

I recently sent a greeting card to my two-year-old granddaughter, and as I was about to sign our names, I realized how meaningless our signatures would be to one too young to read.

So I decided to cut down a photograph and paste a picture of her grandfather and me on the card.

She loved it, and her mother suggested I send the hint to you.

Sugar 'n' spice 'n' everything nice goes for grandmothers too! What a delightful idea that card will be carried around and loved until it's lop-eared.

Bless you, Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I've discovered a marvelous way to take care of that awful nuisance of turning electric clocks back when we go off daylight saving time.

Instead of running through the house to every room and doing all that finger-tiring work, my feeble brain finally came up with the idea of pulling the master electric switch for just that one hour. Then everything is back as it should be.

Dear Heloise:

In the last couple of years I have sewed several dresses from the marvelous double knit dacron material which is such a boon for working women. However, I would get so frustrated because I always had skips in the stitching.

After much tension adjusting, changing of needles, etc., I finally called a repairman and told him my problem.

The kind soul, bless him, suggested I change my zigzag needle plate to the one that will only accommodate straight stitching. I also replaced the zigzag presser foot with the single-hole foot.

Now I can sew over the bulkier seams without a skip of a stitch.

Scribe Recovers From Operation

By HOK BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Probably you've been so busy lately getting Santa Claus into and out of town that you haven't even heard of my operation.

Well, it was a corker—a 13-inch incision, more than 100 stitches. If you'll just hold my cane and let me get a firm grip on your lapels, I'll tell you the whole story—right from the horse's mouth.

To begin with, I'd like to deny the malicious office gossip that my injury last Nov. 5 happened while I was sprinting up Broadway trying to get a better view of a girl in a miniskirt. It was a rainy day, and as any middle-aged girl watcher knows, it is pointless to try to indulge his hobby in the rain. The moisture fogs up his bifocals.

The fact is that, emerging from a Chinese restaurant with a stomach full of egg foo yung and fortune cookies, I saw an empty cab across the street. To catch a cab on a rainy day is every New Yorker's lifelong dream. So I headed for it full steam.

I don't know whether it was the extra weight of the egg foo yung or the fortune cookies, but halfway across the street I felt something snap in my right calf with a sound like the ripping of a sail in the wind.

For two weeks I was bedfast at home with a leg swollen to the size of Jackie Gleason's girth. When I finally was able to hobble to an orthopedist, he told me I had torn loose muscles, tendons and ligaments in the calf, and that they required an immediate job of needlepoint or people would be calling me "gimp" for the rest of my life.

Well, after 12 days, they threw me out of the hospital, cast and all. I had to two-stick it out on crutches.

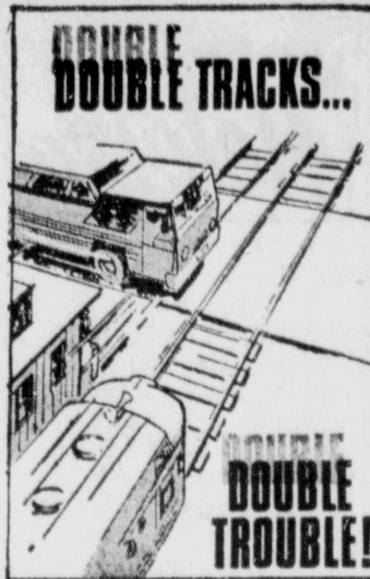

"I could have let you stay a couple more days," said the doctor, "but the porter on the floor refused to mop your room longer because you bragged so much about your operation he couldn't keep his mind on his work."

"But it was an unusual operation," I argued. "Didn't you say it took more than a hundred stitches and that you had to make a 13-inch incision?"

"Yes, I did tell you that," agreed the doctor. "But I thought that would be a little secret just between us."

After that I tried manfully to keep my big mouth shut, but during four weeks of home convalescence I somehow leaked the details of my operation to 50 or 60 of my closest friends via the telephone. After that, everyone I called seemed to have his phone off the hook.

Then, off the crutches and leaning on a cane, I returned to the office. After two days of

Here's How New Tax Measure Affects You

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some of the things you, as an individual taxpayer, will find affecting you in the years ahead from the new tax bill signed today by President Nixon.

None of them apply to the taxes on 1969 income for which taxpayers will be filing returns by April 15, 1970.

Tax reduction:

The present $600 personal exemption is increased to $650 from July 1, 1970, to Dec. 31, 1971, to $700 in 1972, and to $750 in 1973 and thereafter.

A $1,100 low-income allowance to benefit poorer families is added to personal exemptions in 1970.

The present standard deduction, 10 per cent of adjusted gross income up to $1,000, is raised to 13 per cent with a $1,500 ceiling in 1971, to 14 per cent and $2,000 in 1972, and to 15 per cent and $2,000 in 1973.

Single persons, effective in 1971, will pay no more than 20 per cent above the tax level for married couples.

A maximum rate of 60 per cent on earned income, instead of the present 70 per cent, is fixed for 1971 and 50 per cent thereafter.

Persons who work only part of the year, such as students with summer jobs, are excused from tax withholding if they certify they will have no tax liability for the year and owe no tax from the previous year.

Social Security:

A 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits for all recipients becomes effective Jan. 1, with the first higher payment due early in April.

Tax extensions:

The income tax surcharge, which has been 10 per cent, is cut to 5 per cent through June 30, 1970, and eliminated entirely after that.

Present excise taxes of 10 per cent on telephones and 7 per cent on automobiles are extended for one year, to Dec. 31, 1970.

Tax reforms:

A 10 per cent minimum tax is applied against a broad list of preference items, including some oil income, capital gains and accelerated real estate depreciation. But the taxpayer can subtract from his preference income what he pays in normal federal income tax before applying the 10 per cent levy.

Persons moving more than 50 miles are permitted to deduct moving expenses, including such items as the expense of pre-move house-hunting.

The ideal temperature for a Finnish sauna bath is 190 to 200 degrees.

Baby Found In Nun's Car Has Priest On Run

SOUTHGATE, Mich. (AP) — The Rev. Robert J. Poledink will remember this startling introduction to the decade of the '70s: "There is a baby in the sisters' car; you better get it quick."

"I was just dumbfounded," recalled Father Poledink who answered the phone call from a young woman about 1:30 a.m. New Year's Day. "It was a baby boy, alive and whimpering."

Poledink is an associate pastor of St. Pius X Roman Catholic Church in the Detroit suburb where the little boy was left. Father Poledink retrieved the child from the front seat of the station wagon belonging to nuns at the adjoining convent and carried him inside and woke up the Rev. John J. Sullivan.

They estimated the baby had been born only a few hours earlier. It was wrapped in a sheet and large bath towel.

The priests called police and then delivered the baby to a nearby hospital, where the child was reported in good condition. Police said they were questioning a 25-year-old Southgate woman about the baby.

"Talk about the stormy '60s," commented Father Sullivan. "What a way to start the '70s."

New Year's Day Not For Non-Football Fans

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "An orgy of football," was what one broadcaster called the television goings-on New Year's Day.

Over the seasons the bowl games and television in combination have changed the nation's New Year's Day habits. It has become a sports-watcher's marathon.

The leisurely old custom of receiving friends, dispensing warming cheer or making holiday calls has just about disappeared.

Television-watching now starts with the morning coffee and the first of the bowl games and continues without interruption until the last gun of the Orange Bowl football game—12 hours broken only by circulation-restoring stretch periods during the commercials.

The parades are colorful, untaxing spectacles and appreciation of them is greatly enhanced if one has a color set. The oldest of them, the Pasadena Tournament of Roses parade each year seems to grow more sophisticated and elaborate. This year there seemed to be more flowers, more pretty girls, bands, horses and more commercial overtones. Business concerns used it to plug their product; TV networks used it to plug their shows by turning out their stars.

Both CBS and NBC do excellent jobs of covering the extravaganza. One's choice of channel usually boils down to the one with the best reception or a personal preference for the commentators.

ABC got off to a 15-minute head start on the football that filled the small screens all afternoon and into the night. Presumably viewers who started to watch Mississippi upset Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl resisted the impulse a few minutes later to jump to CBS and the Cotton Bowl where Texas defeated Notre Dame.

NBC, along later with the Rose Bowl game, had no competition for the University of Southern California defeat of Michigan. And it also was unopposed with Penn State's Orange Bowl victory over Missouri which followed.

With football dominating the channels, a second TV set was a great help. NBC did manage a couple of hours of soap operas and game shows in midafternoon, and it was business as usual on CBS and ABC in the evening.

But after endless parades and scrimmages, comedy shows like "That Girl" and "Family Affair" seemed to have lost their charm. "The Jim Nabors Show" to the weary viewers appeared to be having a notably bad night.

A football fan won't complain, but most others will assert that four football games within 10 hours is a little too much of a good thing.

Eskymos To Tackle Soo Quint Tonight

A light schedule of games is slated for the weekend as high school basketball again takes over the sports scene in the Upper Peninsula.

Tonight's games will send Escanaba to Sault Ste. Marie for a meeting between two of the three Class A quintets in the peninsula and Manistique will be at Newberry in a Great Lakes Conference clash.

Escanaba will take its 1-3 record into the game with the Soo hoping for improvement. The Eskymos have showed the ability to score points this season, but their defense has allowed some too, as their record indicates.

High-scoring junior forward Tom Kangas has led the Eskymos in the scoring column in all four games this season and has a total of 91 points. His best effort was a 28-point output in Escanaba's victory over Kingsford, Bob Gauthier is the only other Eskymo player averaging over 10 points a game with 49 points in three appearances for a 16.3 average.

Manistique will be after its second victory in conference play against Newberry, which is 0-4 in the league. Dave Mickelson leads the Emeralds in scoring with 51 points in five games while Kendall Neeson and Jerry Sample have shown point-producing ability in the last few games.

Also on the schedule tonight are games between Perkins and Rock and Rapid River and Bark River in the Central League Holiday Tournament at Eben. The finals of the event will be played Saturday between Eben and Trenary.

Unbeaten Marquette (7-0) and Negaunee (5-0) will be out to preserve their perfect records against Ishpeming and Munising on Saturday night. Both games are Great Lakes Conference contests.

Marquette will have its hands full against Ishpeming, which has some sort of jinx over the Redmen outfit. Since Jan. 29, 1965, when Marquette registered a 72-64 triumph, the Hematites have scored eight straight victories and undoubtedly will be at their best seeking to upset the high-flying Redmen. Ishpeming, whose only losses this season have been to Negaunee and Gwinn, carries a 4-2 mark.

Marquette, which has rolled up 589 points in pre-holiday play, and Negaunee, which has the best defensive mark in the peninsula this season, will meet in a show down on Jan. 9.

Also on the weekend schedule are an Eastern U.P. meeting between Soo Loretto and Pickford and trip downstate for DeTour for a game against Freesoil. Both games will be played Saturday night.

Chuck Burkhardt to Lydell Mitchell.

Joe Paterno, the talking Lion coach, declared, "I don't know if we're No. 1 but we have as much right as anyone else to be No. 1."

Burkhardt, who stunned the Tigers with key passes, was named the most valuable back in the Orange Bowl for the second straight year. Mike Reid, the much-decorated Penn State tackle, grabbed the honors as the most valuable lineman.

Penn State, which voiced objections when President Nixon declared Texas the national champion, had flickering hopes of surpassing top-ranked Texas in the final Associated Press poll. However, the Steers scored a 21-17 victory over Notre Dame

TEXAS MOVES — University of Texas fullback Steve Worster (30) rambles down the field for a gain in the first quarter of their game with Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. Notre Dame defensive halfback John Gessner (46) downed Worster on the play. (AP Wirephoto)

Inspired Texas Gridders Defeat Notre Dame 21-17

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The pre-game debate was whether Texas' little linemen could move Notre Dame's big ones. The post-game amazement was how well they pushed them around as the Longhorns beat the Irish 21-17 in the 34th Cotton Bowl classic.

The good little men didn't beat the good big men all alone Thursday. Texas' own big men in the backfield tromped through the Notre Dame line and backfield on three touchdown drives that wrecked the Irish's first bowl effort in 45 years.

Quarterback James Street whipped the Texas chargers for 331 yards on the ground.

A Notre Dame spokesman said the Irish hadn't given up that much yardage since at least 1965. Notre Dame opponents during the '69 season averaged only 85 yards rushing.

In doing it, Texas all but tied the ribbon on the national football championship.

The results of the final Associated Press poll to determine the title will be announced Sunday — but there wasn't much doubt that the sports writers and broadcasters voting in it would follow the lead of President Nixon, who gave Texas a title plaque when the Longhorns defeated Arkansas Dec. 6.

Texas took its inspiration from safety Fred Steinmark, who stood throughout the game on one leg and aluminum crutches. His cancerous left leg was amputated after the Arkansas game, won by Texas 15-14.

"Let's go, let's go! This one's for Freddie," the Texas players yelled as they charged out of the dressing room at half time to fight back from a 10-7 Notre Dame lead.

Street put together the two winning touchdown drives in the fourth quarter, saving the last one with two gambling calls on fourth and two.

The last big save was an eight yard pass Street drilled into split end Charles "Cotton" Speyer's chest as Speyer dived past Notre Dame's Clarence Ellis and hung onto it falling down.

That gave Texas first and goal on the two, and on third down with 1:08 remaining, Billy Daie crashed over from the one with the winning touchdown.

"I didn't even know it was fourth down," Speyer said later of his clutch catch.

"I never thought we would lose, but on that fourth down play, I thought 'this may be my whole football career,'" said Street, who has never played a losing game in guiding Texas to 20 straight victories in a row and its 500th in history.

The Texas players said ninth-ranked Notre Dame was the toughest team they've faced.

The Irish started out looking almost too tough for Texas. Notre Dame took the opening kickoff, marched 82 yards, and went ahead with a 26-yard field goal by Scott Hempel. Then Notre Dame's skinny quarterback Joe Theismann hit Tom Gatwood with a 54-yard touchdown pass.

Texas crunched back on the ground and scored its first touchdown on a one-yard plunge by Jim Bertelsen.

The game rocked between the 20-yard lines in the third period, but Texas' devastating ground attack exploded in the fourth quarter.

Against a line that outweighed them 20 pounds per man, Texas slammed 77 yards in 18 plays and Ted Koy scored with a three-yard run.

The Longhorns hadn't won by any means. Theismann came slashing back and scored with a 26-yard pass to Jim Yoder with 6:32 left.

Fullback Steve Worster, Koy and Bertelsen slammed back, eating up yardage and knocking down tacklers. At the Notre Dame 20, it was fourth and two for Texas. Coach Darrel Royal and Street took the same gamble that had saved them against Arkansas. They went for the first down. Roaring through left tackle, Koy made it by inches in a head-on collision with Notre Dame's great linebacker, Bob Olson.

Notre Dame held three times and that brought Texas to the fourth down gamble that Speyer caught inches off the turf while falling to his knees.

Theismann drove Notre Dame back but Texas' Tom Campbell, Kings Record Puck Victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We were delighted to win, considering we made some dreadful mistakes," said Kings coach Johnny Wilson after a 4-3 National Hockey League victory over Philadelphia.

"Our defense really came to the rescue tonight," he added, after the Thursday night battle. It was the only NHL game of the day.

The Kings came from behind 1-0 in the first period with three straight goals and never trailed.

It was their first decision over the Flyers since December 1968. Wilson, who took command of the Kings after they had fallen into the NHL Western Division basement, now has a 2-2-4 record as coach.

In other Saturday games Oakland plays at Montreal, Chicago at Toronto, New York at Minnesota, Detroit at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh at St. Louis.

Arkansas field pilot from Carroll, Tex., almost drove the Razorbacks to a triumph in the closing minutes. He hit on 17 of 34 passes for 338 yards and two touchdowns and had the Hogs hollering until the last minute and a half when Rebel safety Glenn Cannon's fumble recovery shut the door.

It was midway in the first quarter when the Rebels hung up their first touchdown. Fullback Bo Bowen smashed through a gaping hole at left tackle and 69 yards later Ole Miss was on the scoreboard.

With just 1:15 left in the opening quarter, after two Manning passes had eaten up big yardage, Manning rolled around right end and stumbled into the end zone on an 18-yard sweep. Perry King kicked his second conversion and the Rebels had a 14-0 bulge.

Arkansas pulled matters together in the second period and started a 13-play drive that covered 81 yards with Bill Burnett scoring after Bruce Maxwell's block cleared the way from the 13.

Right back came Mississippi with Cloyce Hinton adding three points on a 52-yard field goal, a Sugar Bowl record, and the Rebels grabbing another touchdown three minutes later on Manning's 30-yard strike to Vernon Studdard.

Montgomery matched Manning's overhead display with a 47-yard pitch that found Chuck Dicus nearly all alone at the goal line. But Mississippi took a 24-12 margin into the dressing room at halftime.

The Rebels drew first blood in the third period on Hinton's 36-yard field goal but that was their point output for the day. Then, Montgomery and the Razorbacks started to run things.

Bill McClard cut into the edge with a 35-yard field goal that brought the score to 27-15 late in the third quarter and Dennis Berner's theft of a Manning toss at the Rebel 41 and his return of it to the Mississippi 11 set up the final game tally. Montgomery hit Maxwell with a six-yard swing pass for the touchdown.

Arkansas then had the momentum but Cannon had some theatrics of his own left. With 2:35 left in the game, Arkansas moved from its 23 to the Mississippi 40 where Montgomery flipped one to Dicus. But Cannon whacked Dicus just as he caught the ball and recovered the fumble when Dicus couldn't hold on to it.

For Coach Frank Broyles it was continued frustration since he has yet to defeat a Vaught-coached team. And it looks like he'll have to wait for next time, whenever the Razorbacks and the Rebels meet again.

For Vaught, he can hardly wait for next season. After all, Ole Miss will have Archie Manning back.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Michigan Wolverines — their heralded shotgun — offense reduced to a boy pistol-couldn't score a touchdown as they lost the Rose Bowl Thursday to Southern California, 10-3.

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler was in the hospital with chest pains during the game, as the Wolverines — who outgained one-time top-rated Ohio State in the regular season — failed to produce on the crucial plays.

A last-minute effort was foiled as the Pacific-8 conference champions managed to upset the favored Michigan team. It was Michigan's first defeat in five trips to the classic. Southern California coach John McKay gave most of the credit to the defense. Southern Cal, playing before a record crowd of 103,878, became the first club ever to play in the Rose Bowl four successive times.

Southern Cal lost three members of their vaunted "Wild Bunch" defensive front line, but McKay said "We have as good a chance as anybody to play here next year." He said the team's stars on offense were mainly underclassmen.

A 33-yard scoring pass from sophomore quarterback Jimmy Jones to junior flanker Bob Chandler brought the points needed to win, but defense held the key.

McKay augmented his Wild Bunch with 250-pound Tony Terry to form a six-man defensive line for this game and the wall threw back the best efforts of Michigan quarterback Don Moorhead and his crew.

Because Schembechler was hospitalized with chest pains, assistant coach Jim Young ran the team.

For one quarter, Michigan had to go without star tailback Bill Taylor who was hurt on the fourth play of the second period and didn't return until the third.

Defensively, the Trojans slammed through to check the Michigan runners and hurry Moorhead's passing. The Wild Bunch played tough and they're big.

"That was our best defensive game," declared McKay and much of the credit goes to the front wall of Jimmy Gunn, a quick 213-pounder, Tody Smith, 237, Bubba Scott, 237, Al Cowlings, 249 and Charlie Weaver, 204. Gunn, Scott and Cowlings are seniors who wound up their collegiate careers with the victory.

McKay's Rose Bowl strategy could be seen in his post-game statement that, "I thought we would run on them and our game plan was to control the ball as much as possible. I didn't think anybody could run on us too much."

Southern California's No. 1 tailback, Clarence Davis, suffered

Southern Cal Trips Favored Michigan

led from bruised ribs so he alternated at the spot with Mike Berry. Both are juniors. Davis gained 76 yards and Berry 65. Between them, they carried on 38 of the winner's runs.

USC scored late in the first quarter on a 25-yard field goal by Ron Ayala with Michigan squaring accounts in the second period on a 20-yarder by Tim Killian. Southern California went ahead on the third quarter touchdown pass and then the Wild Bunch had their biggest tests.

In the final quarter, they stopped Michigan on the USC 13 and again at the nine.

McKay, complimented by President Nixon in a phone call, told the chief executive, "If you ever need any bodyguards, I'll send that five to you."

He explained that Terry joined the front line because regular linebacker Greg Sough was injured and couldn't play much. So the decision was made to revise the defense.

Asked if he felt the new formation was effective, McKay replied with the obvious, "They only scored three points, didn't they?"

Then the coach took a parting shot at critics who have at times termed his club "lucky" because of close scores. "We are the most criticized 10-game winning team in football history, without question."

Red Wing Star Makes 1st Goal

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wing captain Alex Delvecchio will find out Saturday whether the good luck charm given to the team by the reigning Miss America has staying power.

The Wings will play in Philadelphia for the first time since Delvecchio broke his jinx Wednesday to make his first goal of the National Hockey League season.

Delvecchio, the seventh highest goal scorer in NHL history, had been goalless this season, although he led his team in assists.

His score at 4:40 of the first period in the game against Boston Wednesday came while he wore a crown-shaped pin which Pamela Eldred of Detroit loaned to the Red Wings.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — It was a saddened Michigan dressing room Thursday—not so much because the Wolverines lost to Southern California in the Rose Bowl but because they were concerned about the condition of their hospitalized coach.

U-M Coach Bo Schembechler was not on the sidelines New Year's Day when his team lost 10-3 to the Trojans. Instead, he was confined to a bed at St. Luke's Hospital here.

The players originally were told the reason may have been "a mild heart attack." But later team physicians said there may be no specific diagnosis for several days.

"Coach Jim Young told me at 11 a.m. that Bo suffered a mild heart attack," said captain Jim Mandich. "The guys were pretty shook up. Some were crying before the game."

Drs. Gerald O'Connor and Robert Anderson said:

"We have no specific diagnosis of Schembechler's condition now. We examined the possibility of an interruption of oxygen supply to the heart. We found this normal. He was given an electrocardiogram and is being kept under close surveillance. To the best of our knowledge he had some type of upper respiratory condition."

Schembechler, 40, is in his first year at Michigan after six years as head coach at Miami of Ohio.

Tuesday while returning on a bus from practice he suffered what doctors termed then "a severe stomach upset." They reported that he felt better Wednesday when he joined the team for a New Year's Eve stay at a nearby monastery.

"I saw him at the retreat last night and he said he felt well," O'Connor said. "But later on he complained of pains."

"He went to the pregame meal (Thursday), talked to the players, then slipped out so he wouldn't be noticed," said Young who coached the team in place of Schembechler.

Mandich, an All American tight end who caught eight passes for 79 yards, said Bo's absence "was crippling because he called every offensive play all year."

Quarterback Don Moorhead seemed still in shock after the game at Schembechler's condition.

"He was the one who got us here," he said softly. "He let us go out at night and he only left the hotel one night. He stayed and watched game films and was always working."

Coach's Absence Worries Players

"Quite a few of us cried when we heard the news," Moorhead said. "I did."

Middle guard Henry Hill said there was no "win one for the Gipper attitude" among Michigan players because of their coach's condition.

"That's high school stuff," he said. "You have to win one for you."

"But when you look up to a coach all year long and he's not there all of a sudden it's tough," Hill added. "People don't know what a domineering personality he has on the sidelines and it makes a lot of difference when he's not there."

Flanker Preston Henry said the other coaches "were a little indecisive in the plays they called. Bo knows instinctively what to call."

A team spokesman said Schembechler listened to the game on the radio with athletic director Don Canham. Dr. Anderson said Bo's wife and mother were also with him and that no other visitors would probably be allowed.

Pass Interceptions Give Penn State 10-3 Victory

MIAMI (AP) — Second-ranked Penn State's killer defense shackled explosive Missouri with seven pass interceptions in a 10-3 Orange Bowl triumph Thursday night that left Tiger Coach Dan Devine saying there was no way he could vote the Nittany Lions No. 2 in the nation.

"If I had a vote, I might vote a tie for No. 1 between Texas and Penn State," Devine said. "I can guarantee you that I wouldn't vote Penn State No. 2 under any circumstances."

Penn State, which extended its undefeated string to 30 games, struck for its 10 points within a 21-second span of the opening quarter—a 29-yard field goal by Mike Reitz and a 28-yard touchdown pass from

Chuck Burkhardt to Lydell Mitchell.

Joe Paterno, the talking Lion coach, declared, "I don't know if we're No. 1 but we have as much right as anyone else to be No. 1."

Burkhardt, who stunned the Tigers with key passes, was named the most valuable back in the Orange Bowl for the second straight year. Mike Reid, the much-decorated Penn State tackle, grabbed the honors as the most valuable lineman.

Penn State, which voiced objections when President Nixon declared Texas the national champion, had flickering hopes of surpassing top-ranked Texas in the final Associated Press poll. However, the Steers scored a 21-17 victory over Notre Dame

Browns, Chiefs Seeking Revenge In Title Games

By The Associated Press

An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth and all that jazz will add a little extra spice to a pair of football games that will determine the teams that will go to the Super Bowl.

Both Cleveland and Kansas City will have revenge motivations—along with the incentive of making it to pro football's world championship showdown—going for them in Sunday's titanic clashes.

The Browns, who take on Minnesota at Bloomington for the National Football League title, will be trying to atone for a 51-3 shattering inflicted on them by the Vikings during the regular season.

The Chiefs, meanwhile, will be hoping to cure a long jinx against Oakland in the American Football League's title match on the West Coast.

The Raiders have won seven of their last eight meetings with Kansas City—including the playoff for the Western title a year ago and 27-24 and 10-6 victories this season when Oakland again took the West championship.

The NFL finale (to be nationally televised at 1 p.m. EST, CBS-TV) matches a pair of teams lavishly endowed with brute strength. But since each was successful in stopping the rush this season, the outcome could rest on the passing of the Vikings' sensational Joe Kapp and Cleveland's Bill Nelsen.

However, the Vikings will test the Brown line with the strong running of Dave Osborn, Bill Brown and Oscar Reed, while the Browns will counter with dangerous Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott.

Cleveland's big chore will be not only to stop the unpredictable Kapp, but to also provide adequate protection for Nelsen—something the Browns didn't do in the previous meeting with Minnesota. The Vikings dumped Nelsen twice and intercepted three of his passes during the regular season rout.

Kapp, whose philosophy is "If the goal line is close, I'll go get it," augments his passing with excellent running. He carried 22 times for 104 yards this season, and scored two touchdowns in last week's 23-20 victory over Los Angeles for the Western Conference title.

Despite that earlier pulverization, Viking Coach Bud Grant is taking a cautious attitude toward Sunday's battle.

"If you're going to beat them," said Grant, "you have to beat them with execution."

"Leroy Kelly gives me a case of nerves... No matter what the weather is, they're going to give the ball to Kelly on end sweeps."

"They have more game breakers than any other team in the league," he added. "Now with the emergence of Bo Scott, it gives them even more."

Scott accounted for two touchdowns in Cleveland's 38-14 coast past Dallas last week for the Eastern Conference title.

It's the 11th NFL title game for the Browns since 1950—and their fourth during Coach Blanton Collier's seven years as head man—while the Vikings will be appearing in their first title game.

The AFL title game (at 4 p.m., EST, NBC-TV) will be a hookup between Oakland's explosive passing attack and the Chiefs' rugged running game.

Raider quarterback Darryl Lamonica hit 221 of 426 passes for 3,302 yards and 34 touchdowns this season. Warren Wells hauled in 14 of those TD strikes, while Fred Biletnikoff was on the receiving end of 12.

Wells suffered a shoulder separation in the Raiders' last game of the season, but is expected to play Sunday although he may not start.

Rod Sherman, who didn't catch a pass all season, took over for Wells in the playoff rout of Houston and snared two TD catches.

Mike Garrett, who picked up 732 yards in 168 carries for a 4.4 average, heads the Chiefs' bruising ground attack, which rolled up 2,200 yards this season. Robert Holmes accounted for 612 of those yards and Warren McVea 500.

The weekend of pro activity gets underway Saturday, when Los Angeles tests Dallas at Miami in the NFL runnerup bowl.

Flood Seeks Goldberg's Help In Contract Fight

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Former St. Louis Cardinal outfielder Curt Flood and his St. Louis attorney, Allen H. Zerman, planned to fly to New York City today to confer with former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg on details of Flood's expected challenge of the reserve clause in baseball contracts.

Flood, who was with the Cardinals all 12 years of his major league career, was traded to Philadelphia after the 1969 season.

This week baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn rejected Flood's request that he be allowed to negotiate his 1970 contract as a free agent.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the major league players association, said Flood will have plenty of support if and when his expected legal action reaches the courts.

"When the players association decided to back Curt, we wanted him to have the best counsel, so we got Justice Goldberg," Miller said. "And," he added, "we are helping him with his legal bills."

Among the details to be settled on in the New York conference are where and when the suit will be filed and against whom.

"What the public doesn't understand," Miller said, "is that there are alternatives to the existing reserve clause."

"It's not true that the players must either be helpless, as they are now, or else baseball will collapse. There are alternatives in between."

Miller said a two-year agreement between players and owners that expired at midnight Wednesday provided for a joint study of possible alternatives to the reserve clause.

"During the last two years we've met with the owners repeatedly. And we've offered dozens of possibilities as compromises to the reserve clause. But they've said no to every one. And they've never once offered one themselves," Miller said of the owners.

Zerman said the legal goal is "to wipe out the reserve clause. You can't go into court seeking a compromise, he asserted.

"But," Zerman added, "if you and I were sitting around a

Kentucky Opens Defense Of League Championship

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Kentucky opens defense of its Southeastern Conference championship against lowly Mississippi while UCLA, a vulnerable No. 2, hosts Notre Dame in college basketball Saturday night.

Adolph Rupp's Wildcats, unbeaten in eight games, are expected to dispose of Ole Miss with ease. Mississippi's 80-61 Senior Bowl victory at Mobile over South Alabama Tuesday boosted the Rebels' season record to 5-4 but they're still 0-2 in conference play.

UCLA, struggling to defend its third straight national championship might have its problems with Notre Dame. The Irish, 7-3 and ranked 13th nationally, lost to No. 3 South Carolina 84-83 for the Sugar Bowl Classic Tuesday and by only 102-100 to Kentucky last Saturday.

UCLA was embarrassed by Ivy League Princeton in the Bruin Classic final at Los Angeles and very nearly suffered an upset. The Bruins won 76-75 in the last three seconds on Sidney Wicks' jump shot and extended their season's unbeaten string to eight games.

In tonight's games, No. 7 New Mexico State, 11-1, hosts Arizona; No. 9 Washington, 9-1, is at Seattle; Jacksonville, No. 10, is at Hawaii; and North Carolina State, No. 15, meets Virginia at Greenboro, N.C.

Washington's loss came in an 83-73 decision with Oregon in the finals Tuesday night for the Far West Classic at Portland. The Huskies open regular conference play Jan. 10 when they host Stanford. Washington is the only Pacific-8 team besides UCLA in the Associated Press' top 10 rankings and it's regarded as a contender for the conference title, which is up for grabs now that the Lew Alcindor has graduated from UCLA.

The Huskies, with five returning starters, lead the conference in experience, and their coach, Tex Winter, delivered them their best record last year (13-13) since 1962. Winter joined the Huskies last season after 15 years at Kansas State in which he led the Wildcats to a 262-117 record and eight conference championships.

Washington played Seattle at home and won last month 86-73. The Huskies take on Yale Saturday, and do not regard the contest lightly. The Ivy League Elis amazed everyone by beating Louisiana State 97-94 in the Rainbow Classic finals at Honolulu, despite Pete Maravich's 34 points.

Jacksonville, kingpins among the Southern independents last season, is unbeaten in eight games. The Dolphins were 17-7 last year.

In other games Saturday, Rice hosts No. 4 North Carolina, 8-1 after beating Bowling Green 89-72 in the Carolina Classic. Kent State is at No. 5 Ohio University, 7-1 which is still smarting from its 73-65 upset by the obscure Texas Longhorns in the opening game of the Hurricane Classic in Miami. Sixth-ranked Tennessee, 6-1 after a milder upset, opens SEC play by hosting Mississippi State. The Vols

Chicago Nips Seattle Quint

SEATTLE AP — "Have you ever seen anyone score eight points in 40 seconds?" asked a jubilant Dick Motta, coach of the Chicago Bulls.

Some 5,149 disappointed home fans could have supplied the answer as the Bulls turned two fouls and a pair of turnovers to their advantage to score a 114-111 come-from-behind decision over the Seattle SuperSonics in the only National Basketball Association game played New Year's Day.

"We really needed this one," Motta gloated in the locker room. "When you lose five in a row you begin to doubt yourselves. This took the pressure off of us." It was the Bulls' fourth win over Seattle in as many games this season.

Six games are on tap Friday night. Cincinnati is at Baltimore, Boston invades Detroit, Philadelphia hosts Atlanta, San Francisco visits Los Angeles, San Diego plays at Phoenix and Milwaukee hosts New York in a nationally televised game.

Seattle took a 111-106 lead, its biggest of the night, with 43 seconds left when Bob Rule made two free throws and player-coach Lenny Wilkens followed with two more.

That was the last time the Sonics scored. First, Wilkens drew his sixth foul with 40 seconds on the clock. The loss of Lenny's experienced ball-handling talents proved Seattle's undoing.

Then Chicago's Bobby Weiss converted a pair of free throws to trim Seattle's lead to three points. With 27 seconds remaining, Chicago's Clem Haskins stole the ball from Lucius Allen and went in for the layup to make it 110-111. The turning point came seconds later when Haskins intercepted an inbound Sonic pass and was fouled by Clemens.

He completed both foul shots, putting Chicago ahead 112-111. The Bulls' insurance margin came with four seconds left when Loy Peterson was fouled and put in two more free throws.

The fifth and final game of the 1969 World Series drew a record crowd of 57,397 to Shea Stadium, home of the champion New York Mets.

Al Weis of the New York Mets led World Series hitters with a .455 mark. He had five hits in 11 trips to the plate.

Donn Clendenon of the New York Mets drove in the most runs in the 1969 World Series. He had four, the result of three home runs. He batted .357 with five hits in 14 trips to bat.

Ron Swoboda of the New York Mets batted .400 in the World Series with six hits in 15 trips to the plate in four games.

LOOK FOR RAGU

Ruffed Grouse Does Fine, Not State Hunter

LANSING (AP) — Ruffed grouse fared fairly well this hunting season—but the hunters out looking for them didn't do so well.

So says the Michigan Department of Natural Resources in its preliminary report on this year's major hunting seasons.

"Total kill was down from the 345,000 taken in 1968, which also was low," the department reports. Biologists, it adds, point to "unusually bad nesting and brood-rearing seasons back to back in 1968 and 1969."

The department says the pheasant take this year totaled about 400,000 birds, marking little change from the previous two years' kills and "far from the million-plus years of early 1940s and mid-1950s."

Hunters bagged 170,000-180,000 woodcock, "good as any past season," the department says, adding that migration extended over a long period with no marked waves.

This was "one of the best years" for waterfowl hunting.

"Goose hunting was especially good with a lengthy stopover of blues and snows throughout the state," the department says. "Migrant ducks moved over Michigan throughout the season to complement a large number of native birds."

The rabbit take was "nothing dramatic" the department says. There was little change from 1968 when the kill was a little less than 1 million. The rabbit habitat is shrinking, the department reports.

The preliminary hunting season report also repeats deer statistics, calling this year's kill "generally good."

Estimated kill of 99,000 animals compared with 101,000 in 1968. In the Upper Peninsula, the harvest of some 23,000 was down from last year's 26,700. The northern Lower Peninsula harvest of 59,500 was close to the 1968 tally of 61,100 and the southern Lower Peninsula statistics indicate a record take of 16,500 deer, compared with 13,710 in 1968.

Foresees Lesser Steel Demand In Coming Year

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Record production and consumption was recorded for the domestic steel industry in 1969, but T.F. Patton, chairman of Republic Steel Corp., forecast reduced demand for 1970.

Patton said in a statement released Wednesday that the decline will occur because anti-inflation efforts are now beginning to take hold.

Patton said raw steel production for 1969 topped 140 million tons and finished steel came to about 94 million tons, both records for the industry.

He estimated that in 1970 steel companies will produce about 130 million tons of raw steel and 87 million tons of finished steel.

"Two factors bearing most heavily on the outlook are the anti-inflation campaign of the administration and the voluntary quota agreement of Japanese and European companies, which runs through the year 1970," he said.

Patton added that Republic Steel experienced its best year in history in the production and shipment departments. Its output, he said, surpassed old records of 10.2 million tons of raw steel and 7.1 million tons of shipments about mid-December.

Not Cooking With Gas, Family Says As Bills Pile Up

STOURPORT-ON-SEVERN, England (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. David Fortey have been living in their new home for eight months and so far have received eight gas bills, three demands to read their gas meter, two threats of legal action from the gas company, a warning that their gas will be disconnected, a visit from a gas engineer and hints of a court warrant over the affair.

"There's only one problem," said Fortey. "We don't have gas in our house. We cook on electricity and we don't even have a gas meter."

"There seems to be some confusion," said a spokesman for the gas board.

Townships Given More Time To Air Fire Protection Plan

The townships were granted an extended deadline to decide if they want fire protection from the city on a charge basis. Individual townships now have until Feb. 1 to negotiate an agreement with the city.

The extension came at a meeting Tuesday night between city, county and township officials. A Jan. 5 deadline had been set by the city last November.

Payments Top Subject

All townships were represented at the City Hall conference and agreed that fire protection was vital but disagreed on what they should pay.

The city is willing to act as a back-up unit in offering service either on an annual flat fee or a per call charge basis. If the townships wish to contract on a per call basis, the city will charge $300. Computed on valuation of individual townships, the annual fee varies from township to township.

Points Outlined

City Manager Robert Noe outlined the city's position and made the following points:

- The cost of maintaining a four-man fire department (salaries only and excluding equipment) is about $40,000 per year.

- In the past two years, one-third of all fire calls have come from the townships. In 1968 there were 23 township and 51 city fire calls; in 1969, 17 township and 37 city calls.

- The annual fees requested by the city, for all townships, total $5,000, less than one-third of fire department cost to city taxpayers. Actual cost to the city for each call (number of calls divided by department salaries) is $450.

- A survey of other Upper Peninsula cities shows that none offer free fire service to townships and that most do not offer the service on a contract basis. Of those that do, the City of Escanaba, for example, service to outlying Delta County areas costs a flat annual charge varying from $1200, $1500 plus $250 per call.

- The townships can guarantee good and dependable fire protection only by establishing volunteer units and using the city for back-up protection.

- Fire protection is a costly item (truck, salaries, equipment maintenance and replacement costs, heated garage, etc.). Why should city taxpayers support township services?

- Fire protection is a concern and problem each township must assume.

The townships have their say: Joel Carley, Inwood: "The talk of cost ($40,000) is immaterial. It will still cost the city $40,000 whether the townships pay for service or don't. I hear city people say 'we're carrying the townships.' So 40 per cent of county taxes are paid by city residents. What if the people in the townships boycotted the city merchants for one month? What effect would this have on the 40 per cent taxes the city residents pay to the county? We are willing to pay a fair price for fire protection but you can't begin to service three corners of Inwood Township (the areas of Federal Highway 13, Thunder Lake and Steuben). We'd probably agree to $100 per call but not $300.

Suggest $500 Fee

Yavrence Knuth, Thompson: "Our board will probably go along with the city on a fee basis although $300 seems high. Why not a minimum flat fee such as $500 annually based on $200 per call? We'd have two free calls for that sum and owe $100 if we needed help a third time. This plan could be on a trial basis for one year."

Dick Rodgers, Doyle: "We can't afford $300 but probably could pay $100 per call. Our township is in the process of organizing a volunteer fire department. We bought a truck but will have heavy expenses getting the department organized. We just don't have the money to pay $300."

Rodgers requested the extended Feb. 1 deadline to allow township boards to meet and reconsider the city's ultimatum on service.

Agner Dehlin, Hiawatha: "Why couldn't the protection be offered on a county-wide basis and paid for through a county-wide millage levy? Hiawatha has only one-third of the city's valuation and can't afford service at the rates quoted."

Valuation Rapped

Dehlin also hinted that "something is wrong" in the city's $10 million assessed valuation figure. "There is no dollar return on this figure and where is the money going?" he questioned. These statements led into a discussion on property valuation assessing practices.

The city, through Noe, pointed out that while the townships had the services of the county assessor, the city employed their own paid assessor. Since the city is part of the county, why shouldn't the county assessor do city work?, he asked.

Norman W. Jahn, City Supervisor on the County Board of Commissioners (supervisors): Jahn questioned the $40,000 fire department budget and said that the four firemen weren't making "anywhere near $10,000 each a year." Noe replied that the figure included salaries (the men averaging between $6,500 and $7,000 per year) plus 30 per cent fringe benefits. Also included is salary expense for extra-duty men who must come in when the firemen are out on calls. Those men, usually policemen, are paid time and one-half for their duty, he said.

Lindsley Frenette, Doyle Township, chairman of the County Board of Commissioners: "The county wants to get out of the fire truck business," referring to a truck the county purchased some years ago which is housed by the city department and was available for county calls. "It's difficult for a township to set up a volunteer department. Besides the expense, the men must know how to run and maintain the equipment."

Some township officials indicated they would invite Noe to attend their January board meeting.

Volunteer Plan Of Police Aids City Relations

DETROIT (AP) — The leader of a campaign in which 168 policemen donated overtime to fight crime in a mainly black precinct says the volunteer program has improved police-community relations.

"We're getting invited to block club meetings and community groups that we never were invited to before," said Patrolman Joseph Wahl. "It turned out better than anyone suspected."

The policemen worked more than 1,200 unpaid hours during December as a holiday present to the residents of the 7th Precinct, where the crime rate is high.

There were no immediate statistics on whether the crime decreased.

"You don't mind paying taxes to men like that," said Mrs. Odan Givanti.

"If the other people who live here are like me," said Adelle Donaldson, "they appreciate it. We need all the help we can get."

Wahl said, "The guys all say that it has helped. Just the other day my partner and I walked into a home and they asked if we were the men working on our day off."

Some residents, however, didn't notice the donation.

"I'm glad they work on their day off," said Bill Hayes, owner of a cleaners, "but I wish they'd work a little harder." Hayes said he had just been robbed.

"The police never come by here often enough," complained Laura Reed, who owns a second hand store.

"We aren't going to quit with this," Wahl said. "The men out here feel we're really on to something and we plan to start other unique ideas and programs to become closer to the community."

Annie Watkins, president of a block club, agreed that the Cop-for-Christmas idea hit the mark. It began Dec. 1 and ended Wednesday night.

"These men have done quite a bit to promote good will," Mrs. Watkins said. "We are getting to feel pretty close to our 7th Precinct."

"The days they gave have been meaningful, very meaningful."

Unmarked Grave Slated For Youth Killed By Auto

MARSHALL, Mich. (AP) — A young man may lie in an unmarked grave here, unless someone can identify him.

On Dec. 23, a 15-18 year-old boy dressed in dark clothing was struck by a car and fatally injured on I-94 near Marshall. Calhoun County sheriff's deputies said there was no way to identify him.

He was wearing an army fatigue jacket with tweed pants, a long sleeved navy blue shirt, and cowboy boots. He was 5 feet-7, 130 pounds with brown eyes and long brown hair.

He has been named "John Calhoun" by the county officials, who plan a non-denominational funeral if no identification is made.

Merger Okayed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Reliance Electric Co. of Cleveland and Applied Dynamics Inc. of Ann Arbor, Mich., announced Tuesday the merger of Applied Dynamics into Reliance, effective Tuesday.

The terms of the agreement call for the issuance of .667 shares of Reliance common stock for each share of Applied common.
